FIRST RETURNS IN STATE VOTE

Two for Curley—Democratic candidate for governor, James M. Curley, and wife are 9 o'clock voters at the Mary E. Curley school, Jamaica Plain . . . and guess how they voted!

Ditto for Saltonstall—Republican candidate for governor, Leverett Saltonstall, and wife are 10 o'clock voters at the Episcopal Church, Newton . . . and guess how they voted!

HUGE EARLY VOTE CAST IN BAY STATE

By ALFRED D. WHELTON

Heavy voting was reported throughout the state today as Massachusetts citizens thronged to the polls to decide one of the hardest fought state contests in many years.

Former Governor James M. Curley, generally credited with having made substantial gains in closing hours of his whirlwind campaign, was given an edge over his Republican opponent, Leverett Saltonstall, in the hammer and tongs battle for the governorship.

First of the two major candidates to cast his vote today was Curley.

CANDIDATES VOTE EARLY

He and his wife, modish and attractive Mrs. Gertrude Dennis Curley, dropped their ballots in the box at Mary E. Curley School, Jamaica Plain, just after 9 a. m.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Curley, son and daughter-in-law of the former governor, voted at the same time.

An hour later Candidate Saltonstall, Mrs. Saltonstall and their son, Leverett, Jr., voted at the Episcopal church in Hammond street, Newton.

Showers, threatened for late today, continued to hold off, encouraging what was forecast as a record trek of citizens to the polling places.

Being closely watched by experts as the balloting was in progress were indications of voting strength in districts supposedly controlled by groups which supported John W. Haigis, Republican candidate for governor, two years ago.

HOPE FOR HURLEY BOLT

Saltonstall supporters, on the other hand, were alert for indications that anti-Curley Democrats, alienated by defeat of Governor Hurley for renomination, might vote Republican.

While the Curley-Saltonstall contest topped all others in interest, voters also marked crosses to decide a spirited contest for lieutenant governor between James H. Brennan, Democratic nominee, and Speaker of the House Horace T.

20 Police Rush No. End Polls

A squad of 20 detectives was raced from police headquarters to the North End today on complaint that a widely known sportsman and political boss had a crew of 100 repeaters casting illegal ballots in the district.

Deputy Superintendent John M. Anderson, in charge of the special detail, was ordered to arrest the boss, himself, if evidence could be obtained linking him with any fraudulent voting attempts.

Also marked for arrest was one of the boss' henchmen, well known in sporting circles and reported active today in the vicinity of North End polling places.

CURLEY VISITS SCENE

Gubernatorial Candidate James M. Curley, informed of the alleged activity of repeaters in the North End, hurried to the district, accompanied by Mrs. Curley.

The former governor interviewed his own workers at North End polling places, received reports from them and cautioned them to be vigilant against ballot box stuffing.

An associate of the man named as responsible for the alleged invasion of repeaters was questioned, point blank, by Curley.

The associate denied the boss was active in the district.

"We're only interested in the horse and dog vote," he asserted.

CURLEY LASHES REPEATERS

Later, Curley conferred at police headquarters with Superintendent Edward W. Fallon.

The former governor said "flagrant" and "outrageous" repeat voting was going on in the North End, East Boston and South Boston.

He said the fraudulent balloting was the boldest of his experience.

He named two men he blamed for organizing the repeaters.

FIRST BOSTON ARREST

Other balloting disorders were being dealt with in Brighton, Cambridge and Lynn.

First arrest of the day for illegal voting in Greater Boston was in Ward 21, Brighton.

There police seized a man who allegedly admitted having cast two ballots by use of other voters' names.

The accused repeater, Daniel F. Keaveny, 37, of Elmwood place, Roxbury, was taken in custody at Precinct 7 polling place in Brainerd road.

Election officers in that precinct said he gave the name of Horace S. Haley, Jr., of Commonwealth avenue.

TROUBLE IN CAMBRIDGE

Keaveny, questioned at Brighton police station, allegedly said he had voted at Precinct 9 poll-

Weather Assures Big Vote

There was nothing scheduled in the weather today to prevent a record vote in Boston, Massachusetts and the whole of New England.

Continued mildness, with as expected 72, prevailed, with skies not so overcast as to dim any political enthusiasms.

Rain was scheduled for tonight, light rain, but not until after the polls' closing.

Tomorrow: Much colder for the public as well as for defeated candidates.

Heat Records Broken Again

For the fourth consecutive day, temperature records for Boston were broken today, with the mercury reaching 74 at noon. It dropped afterwards, however.

Previous record for this day was 72 in 1895.

Yesterday's high point of 77 broke the record for November 7; Sunday's 72 broke the record for November 6, and Saturday's 72 broke the record for November 5.

Anti-Chamberlain Candidate Winner

LONDON, Nov. 8 (INS)—Administering a severe setback at the polls to the foreign policy of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, Mrs. J. L. Adamson, Laborite candidate, today was declared elected by a majority of 4238 votes over Godfrey Mitchell, in the Dartfort parliamentary by-election.

AUTO VICTIM DEAD

Edward Madden, 70, River street, Waltham, run down by an auto as he crossed a street near his home, died as he was being rushed to a hospital in a police ambulance.

Mashers at Girls' College Draw Fine

MONTPELIER, Vt., Nov. 8 (AP)—Convicted of annoying a teacher and students of Goddard College, women's college at Plainfield, two men today each paid $5 fines and $7.70 costs.

They were Paul Collard, 27, of Barre Town, and Donal Belanger, 24, of Williamstown. A third man will be arraigned tomorrow on a similar charge.

State Attorney Webster E. Miller testified the men molested the girls by asking for dates and by playing a spotlight on them.

American to Present Vote Results on Air

Extensive coverage of election developments for the radio audience will be part of the Boston Evening American service over WMEX throughout late afternoon and through the evening until the result is known.

Special microphone connections with the editorial rooms of the Boston American will make these returns available at regular intervals.

Comments on the trend of the voting by American staff correspondents will be a feature.

Details of the voting by cities, towns, counties and wards will be voiced by Newcomb F. Thompson, radio editor of the American, assisted by John E. Reilly, program director of WMEX.

A special program of music will provide the interludes between announcement of the returns. Last minute election flashes from other sections of the nation will also be part of the big broadcasting schedule.

Bulletins will be on the air at quarter hour intervals and provide complete last minute details of developments reaching the American.

State Vote

TOLLAND, Nov. 8 (AP)—Tolland voters gave Leverett Saltonstall 49 votes today for governor to 12 for former Governor James M. Curley. The vote in this town two years ago was Haigis, Republican, 48; Hurley, 16.

The vote for other offices:

Lieutenant governor—Horace T. Cahill (R.) 50, James H. Brennan (D.) 8; secretary of state—Frederic W. Cook (R.) 50, Katherine A. Foley (D.) 10; state treasurer—William E. Hurley (R.) 48, Owen Gallagher (D.) 10; tate auditor— Russell A. Wood (R) 44, Thomas H. Buckley (D.) 14; attorney general—Clarence A. Barnes (R.) 43, Paul A. Dever (D.) 16; United States representative, First istrict—Allen T. Treadway (R.) 49, Owen Johnson (D.) 14; for biennial sessions of the legislature the vote was: Yes 31, No 8.

BILLERICA, Nov. 8 (AP)—The first block of votes counted here today gave Leverett Saltonstall (R.), 25, and James M. Curley (D.), 23. A total ballot of between 2500 and 3000 was expected. The town went Republican by around 300 votes in 1936.

MASHPEE, Nov. 8 (AP)—The first 56 ballots counted here today gave former Governor James M. Curley (D.) 30 votes and former Speaker of the Massachusetts House Leverett Saltonstall (R.) 18 in their battle for the governorship. Two were blank. One hundred and sixty-seven persons voted.

PERU, Nov. 8 (INS)—For governor, Saltonstall (R.) received 41 votes and Curley (D.) 26 in this second Berkshire Hills town to report in the election this afternoon.

Bar Arlington Pair at Polls

Refused ballots in Arlington and told their names were not on the checklist, Mr. and Mrs. William O'Connor, Hillside avenue, Arlington, hurried into Boston and protested to Governor Hurley.

He turned them over to Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook, who in turn passed them along to an official of the division of elections.

An investigation was begun and O'Connor, disgusted, told reporters:

"I guess we're being given the run-around. I've been a voting resident of Arlington for 11 years."

Nice Doggie!

George A. Hayes, 36, Arnold road, Wellesley, says if a big shepherd dog owned by a neighbor wasn't so friendly and playful he wouldn't be nursing a broken leg. While Hayes was taking a stroll through the fields near his home, the dog bounded at him. The fracture occurred as Hayes fell.

Seize Scores in R. I.

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 8—Clanging patrol wagons, one stabbing, uniformed deputy sheriffs stationed by Governor Robert E. Quinn's orders at every polling place, scores of arrests of alleged floaters and Republican charges that this is "the most corrupt election in Rhode Island history," signalized election day in "Little Rhody" today.

In Pawtucket, even before noon, Republican officials publicly had announced they would refuse to sign the election returns.

APPEAL TO WASHINGTON

Republican State Chairman Peter H. Brereton announced he was "appealing to Washington"—although for what, exactly, he did not say. After terming today's election "the most corrupt in Rhode Island history," he added:

"Matters rapidly are getting out of control."

Governor Quinn had two uniformed deputy sheriffs stationed at each polling place throughout the state.

Democratic State Chairman William E. Shawcross countered Republican Chairman Brereton's charges by declaring the Republicans were responsible for the disorder and "floaters," scores of whom were arrested during the day.

O'HARA SPLITS THEM

At grips here are Democratic Governor Quinn's forces and the Republicans led by William H. Vanderbilt, with Walter E. O'Hara's "Square Deal" candidacy splitting both parties and occasioning incalculable confusion.

The election, it generally is agreed, hinges upon the vote given O'Hara, deposed head of Narragansett track and Quinn's bitter enemy ever since Quinn called out the National Guard last year to prevent the track's opening.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—Lucy Cotton Thomas, 13, who gets $3000 a month to live on, now has a fortune of $1,700,000. This was disclosed today in a guardianship accounting filed in Surrogates Court. Lucy is the daughter of Mrs. Lucy Cotton Magraw of New York and Miami. The estate had increased by more than $100,000 in the last five years.

Calls Shooting Accident

Youth, Near Death, Clears His Fiancee

ROCHESTER, N. H., Nov. 8—Near death with a bullet in his chest, Juneor Littlefield, 23, of North Berwick, Me., today declared his 17-year-old fiancee, Marseilles Lavallee, shot him accidentally.

Shortly before he was wheeled into the X-ray room, Littlefield whispered to a nurse:

"It was as much my fault as hers. Please don't blame Marseilles."

Littlefield's statement, clearing the girl, closed police investigation of the case.

He was in such critical condition, however, that doctors hesitated to remove the bullet, lodged near his right lung.

According to police, the girl admitted accidentally wounding Littlefield during a target practice session near his home. She claimed she did not realize the gun was loaded, police stated.

The two were taking turns firing at the target at the time of the accident. As Miss Lavallee took the rifle, it suddenly discharged and a .22 calibre bullet entered Littlefield's right lung, police said.

The girl, whose home is in Somersworth, N. H., told police she and Littlefield were to be married before Christmas.

Triangle Slayer Missing In Wilds

THE SIKORAS

CHICAGO, Nov. 8 (INS)—Rudolph Sikora, who failed to win back his wife by slaying her sweetheart, was reported missing today in the wilds of the Absaroka national forest in Montana, according to a story in the Chicago Herald and Examiner.

The 31-year-old clerk was acquitted several weeks ago for killing Edward Solomon, to whom his pretty wife, Margaret, had turned for more thrilling romance.

To recover from the ordeal of the trial, Sikora last week went to visit a friend, John Egan, in the village of Absarokee.

Shortly afterward his relatives here received a letter from him, the gist of which was "I can't forget" and indicated he was still haunted by memories of his wife and broken home.

Members of his family became alarmed by the tone of the letter and his brothers, Charles and Albert, obtained leave of absence from their work and went to Absarokee to talk to Rudolph.

They arrived Sunday only to find he had left the town.

The Herald and Examiner story said that all efforts to locate the young man had failed. His friend Egan was quoted as saying that Sikora had left "to go up North, alone" several days before.

Although Sheriff Frank Murphy at Columbus, Mont., said no fears were felt for Sikora's safety, he admitted no trace of him had yet been found.

Vanishing Trio Mystery Grows

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 9—A bag of clothing held by police and a woman's letter in the hands of New York detectives, today were the sole clues with which authorities strove to solve the mystery disappearance of a man, a woman and a baby.

All trace of the trio vanished with the renting of a Forest Hills, Long Island, apartment, and discovery a locked cabin aboard the Providence-New York steamer Comet was vacant.

Tentatively, the persons sought were identified as a Mrs. Loretta Schaeffer and a Dr. William F. Schaeffer and a baby.

CLOTHING MAY BE CLUE

Only a bag of clothing was found in the Comet's stateroom when it docked here.

The stateroom had been taken in Mrs. Schaeffer's name but officers were unable to say authoritatively whether she ever sailed with the ship. They likewise knew nothing of a Dr. Schaeffer or a child.

But in the bag were women's clothing and a nightdress, a pair of men's pajamas and socks and a quantity of baby's clothing.

Much of the mystery centered about a house at Forest Hills, Long Island, N. Y., the reported home of the Schaeffers.

It was there that a $5 deposit had been made on an apartment at Forest Hills by a Mrs. Schaeffer, last Friday.

DETECTIVES PUZZLED

But investigating New York detectives ran up against a blank wall there for the agent of the apartment house showed them the following note received at the time the stateroom was hired:

"My husband has been killed in an automobile accident and I will be unable to take the apartment." It was signed "Loretta Schaeffer."

Belief that a baby figures in the disappearance came solely from discovery of the child's clothing on board the Comet.

Check of New York hospitals revealed that no Dr. Schaeffer had been killed in the vicinity of New York. Detectives also declared they could locate no doctor by that name in New York.

Providence police admitted their inquiry rests on the ability of New York police to trace the Schaeffer family either through the discarded clothing or through information volunteered by some one who may have known the family.

Trial of 'Mad Artist' Killer Put Over 2 Days

NEW YORK, Nov. 8 (AP)—Under way only one day, the often-postponed trial of Robert Irwin, confessed slayer of the artists' model, Ronnie Gedeon, and two others, was recessed today until Thursday, when selection of nine more jurors and two alternates will be resumed.

Laying the groundwork for an insanity plea by the so-called "mad sculptor," whose three murders on Easter Sunday, 1937, are admitted, Defense Counsel Samuel Leibowitz questioned veniremen sharply yesterday.

Did they believe Irwin should pay with his life, whether sane or not? And would they send him to the electric chair, if he were proved insane, for fear he might escape otherwise? Leibowitz asked.

After three jurors had passed the exacting tests of Leibowitz and Assistant District Attorney Jacob Rosenblum, General Sessions Judge James Wallace ordered a recess for both election day and Wednesday.

STATE WITNESS—Ethel Kudner, once loved by the "mad sculptor," Robert Irwin, is expected to be one of the state's principal witnesses when the three-time killer's trial is resumed in New York City, Thursday.

Alcatraz, the 'Hot Rock'

By F. F. REED

(Copyright, 1938, by Hearst Publications, Inc.)

When it comes to those "sub-standard constitutions" the bug doctor was talking about, the Rock's prize example, so far as I'm concerned, was poor old "Dutch" Bowers.

WHITE'S FIFTH FLOOR

"Dutch," if you remember, was the first con to beat the "Rock" by having himself punched full of holes. It shouldn't have happened for a dozen reasons, the first of which is that "Dutch" Bowers should never have been on Alcatraz.

In the first place, he was far from tough. His record shows a Dyer Act violation and a postoffice robbery. The first means he stole an automobile and happened to take it across a state line.

The second means he stuck up a Marin County general store and got $16—and the store happened to be a branch post-office.

And in the second place, Dutch should have been in a hospital—not in a pen for tough criminals. I knew him in Leavenworth, and he was in pretty good shape, physically, and was bright enough to speak seven languages. That was until he had that thyroid operation.

After that, he used to have what he called "swingies"—he'd faint in his cell and keel over and crack his skull against the bars or the floor.

NO TREATMENT

He still had them when they shipped him—in the same shipment with me—to Alcatraz. But he didn't get any treatment for them. He just kept getting sadder and sadder and you could see that he was slipping.

He passed from brooding spells and a long face to crying. Then he got troublesome, going around offering to punch cons he hardly knew.

Then he began trying it. He used to pick up a stool in the laundry and run one of his best friends, George Nolan, all around the place. And when Nolan outran him, he'd sit down and cry.

About that time he began telling me fairy tales about himself—how he and another dude and a gal were adrift at sea in a small boat, and food was scarce, so Dutch and the dude killed the gal.

Then he turned suicidal. His prettiest caper was to stand at the back of his cell, stick his head down, and plough into the bars of the door like a billy goat. He'd knock himself cold and lie there until a guard would come along and put him on his bunk.

When he'd ask him why he pulled such a stunt, he'd answer:

"What else could I do?"

RAVING SPELLS

In the mess hall he'd have raving spells—pound the table, and yell and scream "service, damn it, I want service." He got it, fast. They tossed him into the hole. He was there so many times that I can't remember them.

Finaly, they decided he was so whacky that he had to stay out of the mess hall; they began serving his meals in his cell.

Then they gave him the incinerator job—a job where he worked all by himself, and couldn't bother anybody. He used to burn the rubbish, and smash the cans, and toss them over the wire fence into the bay.

He was working there when they killed him. They said he was trying to escape, that he was going over the 12-foot fence and they let him have it after he ignored warning shots.

Well, Dutch was going over the fence all right. But he wasn't trying to get out of the prison; he was trying to get back in.

The story as we got it, very straight, is that Dutch pitched some of his cans so they stuck in the overhanging barbed wire, and in his simple-minded way climbed up the fence to shake them loose.

Once on top, he saw that other cans had caught on the narrow ledge outside the fence. So he dropped down, and tossed them over the cliff into the water. Then he started climbing back to his job.

He had one leg over when the screw began pumping lead at him. The first bullet must have reached him—according to my information—because his leg jerked and hung limp.

Then another one caught him in the chest, and he quivered, and straightened up and fell over backward. He hit the ledge and bounced and dropped 70 feet into the surf.

Two big laughs came out of it.

The first was when they announced that poor old Dutch had proved the Rock was escape-proof. Well, if Dutch was trying to escape by that route, he was even crazier than we knew he was.

After he got over that fence, there wasn't any place for him to

What Went On Before

In a new, factual series of articles dealing with "The Rock," F. F. Reed, author of "Murder on Alcatraz," is presenting new details of the twisted lives and strange conditions on America's Devil's Island.

It is an "inside," authentic story, based on Reed's 49 months as an Alcatraz prisoner."

In opening the series yesterday, Reed fastened upon the testimony of Dr. Joseph Catton, eminent psychiatrist, who declared that "substandard constitutions and overzealous discipline" might account for the appalling prevalence of insanity in the prison.

King Accepts U. S. Invitation

LONDON, Nov. 8 (INS)—Standing amid glittering medieval pageantry in the House of Lords, King George VI of England today formally announced his acceptance of President Roosevelt's invitation to himself and Queen Elizabeth to visit the United States next summer.

The monarch made his announcement from a crimson and gilt dais in the historic chamber as he opened with ancient ceremonial, the second Parliament of his reign.

"I have been happy," he said, "to accept the invitation extended to the Queen and myself by President Roosevelt to visit the United States before the conclusion of our Canadian tour.

"I warmly welcome this practical expression of the good feeling that prevails between our two countries."

In subsequent debate in the House of Commons, Prime Minister Chamberlain drew cheers from all parties with a warm statement on the King's plan to visit the United States, which he said as of "outstanding importance."

Such a visit, the prime minister said, would be the first time a King and a Queen of England had "set foot in the land of a great democracy which for the past 150 years has played so increasingly important a role in the history of the world and has contributed so much to politics and in economics and in commercial enterprise and in culture to the progress of the human race."

Their majesties, he added, would take "a warm message of good will from the people of these islands to the great republic of the new world."

The monarch declared he and Queen Elizabeth were anticipating their visit to Canada with "keenest pleasure."

Queen Elizabeth sat beside the youthful King as he delivered the speech, his slender figure dwarfed by the great, golden throne and weighed down by his massive jewelled crown and heavy robes.

Turning to European problems, he declared the British government is determined to promote development of an Anglo-German understanding in the spirit of the Munich "no war" declaration, and expressed belief that ratification of the Anglo-Italian friendship pact further would aid the cause of European peace.

King George expressed regret regarding continuation of the hostilities in Spain and said his government was ready to assist peace efforts there.

He hinted at a forthcoming statement on British policy in Palestine and then turned to the Far East, where he said Britain was ready at any time to aid a settlement which would ensure lasting peace.

Roosevelt 'Happy' Over King's Decision

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Nov. 8 (AP)—President Roosevelt is "very happy" over news that the King and Queen of Great Britain will visit this country next year after their Canadian tour, a statement from the temporary White House said today.

Mayor Tobin Shocked by So. End Filth

Mayor Tobin today called a conference with city health and public works officials to remedy the unsanitary conditions of South End streets and alleyways.

After an inspection of the district, the mayor declared he was "amazed and shocked" by garbage-strewn streets and refuse-littered alleyways.

He said he would recommend to department heads the installation of garbage and refuse receptacles and more stringent enforcement of health laws.

He was charged with careless driving.

English Dean Urges 'Faith'

"The existence of God really needs no argument," the Very Rev. Walter R. Matthews, dean of St. Paul's, London, declared in the second of a series of five sermons in Memorial Church at Harvard University.

"I am personally very firmly convinced that every person has a direct assurance of God. Often this intuition is not attended to and remains a dim light.

"There are no actual atheists; a man becomes an atheist by reasoning himself into atheism out of a natural belief.

"The whole of civilized humanity is in a deep crisis. We need the strength that comes from faith in the eternal."

Car Bandits In $78 Foray

Three bandits, masked by handkerchiefs, held up Ernest Caras, 26, of Oldfield street, Roxbury, today and robbed him of $78 after forcing his car to the curb of a South Boston street.

The trio appeared in a black sedan as Caras was driving south along Boston street. While one remained in the sedan another covered Caras with a revolver, and the third searched his pockets.

"Stay where you are for 30 minutes. If you move before the time's up we'll shoot!" the gunmen warned as they fled.

Fore River Man Killed by Shot

Edward Williams, 35, Adams street, Dorchester, a draughtsman employed in the Fore River ship yards, was shot and killed today while riding with four other shipyard employes in an automobile in Sea street, Quincy, near the Quincy police station.

Herbert Hearty, 34, Adams terrace, Dorchester, one of the other men, was wounded in the right arm by the same bullet that killed Williams.

All five men were on their way to work when the shooting occurred.

Police said the shooting was accidental.

According to accounts given police, Williams, a former National Guard lieutenant, was carrying a .45 calibre automatic pistol in his hip pocket.

He complained, the other man said, that the weight and position of the weapon was "uncomfortable," and took it out of his pocket, removing the "clip" or magazine as he did so.

Apparently, however, police were told, there was a bullet in the chamber. Williams' companions were unable to state exactly what happened, except, they said, that there was "an explosion" and Hearty cried out.

It was not until they got to Quincy city hospital, they said, that they realized Williams had been much more seriously wounded than had Hearthy.

Williams died shortly after admittance to the hospital. Hearty's wound, doctors said, is not serious.

With Williams and Hearty in the car at the time of the shooting were Joseph F. Calnan, 33, Leslie street, Dorchester; Walter H. Hickey, 35, Julian street, Dorchester, and Joseph S. Callahan, Dixwell street, Boston.

At Williams home, his widow, Mrs. Claire Pelrine Williams, told police her husband, still a reserve officer, had the pistol Sunday for target practice. He was to have turned it over to another reserve officer today, she said.

The Williamses were married nine years ago. There is an 8-year-old daughter, Elaine. Mrs. Williams is the former Claire Pelrine of Revere.

Betty Lou's New Daddy Idle, Happy

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—Marcel Van de Werken, brand new daddy of little Betty Lou Francos, found himself out of a job today.

The family which had employed him as a chauffeur notified him he was fired.

That bit of bad luck, however, didn't discourage Van de Werken or make him regret his generous and impulsive act in marrying Betty Lou's previously unwed mother, pretty young Anna Francos.

"I've a charming bride, a cosy home and a darling baby daughter," Van de Werken said.

"There are plenty of other jobs. I'm a competent chauffeur with fine references. And I have money in the savings bank.

"It looks to me as if I were ahead of the game."

His temporary unemployment gave Dad Van de Werken a welcome opportunity to get better acquainted with 10 months' old Betty Lou.

Betty Lou, of course, didn't know that she owed her good fortune to the wisdom of a Westport, Conn. judge who played the role of a modern Solomon when he refused to allow her to be adopted by either of two would-be foster mothers who took their rival claims to court.

Tropical Storm Nears Florida

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 8 (AP)—The weather bureau said today a tropical storm of less than hurricane force was centered at 7 a. m., over northwestern Andros Island in the Bahamas (about 250 miles southeast of Miami) and was moving northwestward about 10 miles an hour.

"This storm," the bureau reported, "has shown no increase in intensity during the last 12 hours and is now attended by squalls north of the center not exceeding 50 miles an hour.

"The storm will likely turn toward the north today and will move more rapidly and will cause squally weather today, probably not exceeding 40 to 45 miles an hour on the east Florida coast between Key Largo and Cape Canaveral."

LONDON, Nov. 8—A trade pact between the United States and Great Britain definitely has been concluded, it was learned today.

Details of the Anglo-American pact, long the subject of negotiations in Washington and London, will be announced publicly next week.

Despite denials which are almost certain to come from Washington, negotiations for the trade agreement have been completed and a high London source declared confirmation and details of the pact may be withheld by the American government because of the elections in the United States.

Flood Blamed In Train Crash

CHARLEMONT, Nov. 8—Limited rail facilities due to recent floods today were blamed for the head-on crash of a passenger and freight train which caused the death of a fireman and the shaking up of 12 passengers.

Clarence D. Russell, 45, of Stillwater, N. J., was killed instantly when two engines, both going less than 15 miles an hour, met. He was crushed when the tender of the passenger train pushed into the engine on which he was fireman.

The engineer, Bert Wood of Boston, escaped injury by leaping just before the two locomotives met.

Engineer George Hartnett and Fireman E. H. Herbert, both of Greenfield, the crew on the freight train locomotive, remained at their posts, but escaped serious injury when thrown to the floor of the cab in the crash.

Jap 'Warning' In New Drive

TOKYO, Nov. 8 (AP)—Japan today marked out a new "zone of hostilities" extending 700 miles into the interior of China beyond present war areas and warned foreign powers to keep their airplanes and citizens out of the zone lest "unfortunate incidents" occur.

Notes sent to all foreign embassies and legations described the new zone and indicated that interior points would be subjected at least to air bombardment in a campaign to close to the Chinese munition transportation channels from British Burma and possibly French Indo-China.

The designated zone of hostilities includes Chungking, provisional Chinese capital and present location of the American embassy.

The Japanese already have taken control of major Chinese ports and railways.

The new area of hostilities designated in the note today to foreign embassies and legations extends to a line running from Yunnan, southwestern province bordering French Indo-China and British Burma, northward through Szechwan province to Kansu, northwestern province bordering Tibet and Mongolia.

"With a view more fully to insure protection of the lives and property of third country nationals" the note requested foreign governments to take the following "adequate measures":

RIGHTS TOLD

"First, it is desirable that your government should prohibit airplanes belonging to your country from flying in the above-mentioned regions.

"Second, your nationals traveling in said regions shall do so at their own risk.

"Third, it is desirable that they should withdraw as far as possible to other places of safety.

"Fourth, it is requested that information concerning the rights and interests of your nationals existing within said regions should be communicated to Japanese authorities in China.

"It is to be understood it will be impossible to afford full protection to foreign rights and interests when these measures have not been taken."

The foremost Japanese naval units were reported 60 miles up river from Hankow, within 60 miles of Yochow.

CANTON, Nov. 8 (AP)—Heavy artillery, rifle and machine-gun fire echoed over Canton from the north today, indicating large-scale fighting on the southern China front had been resumed.

Reports were that reorganized Chinese troops were approaching the outskirts of the city.

TOKYO, Nov. 8 (AP)—Japan's imperial headquarters announced today that during the fast four months Japanese armies had found bodies of 143,650 Chinese soldiers on China battlefields. The Japanese took only 5270 prisoners.

Japanese losses were given as 6153 killed and wounded during the same four months—July to October inclusive.

Nazis Claim U. S. Incites 'Fears'

BERLIN, Nov. 8 (AP)—An organ of the German foreign office today sharply attacked the United States, charging official and unofficial attempts to incite South American countries against Germany and to convince South Americans of "the evil intentions of the Fascist states."

Deutsche Diplomatisch-Politische Korrespondenz cited a radio address Sunday night by Sumner Welles, undersecretary of state, and added:

"It is known that the United States will neglect nothing, especially in connection with the colonial question, to stir up a fear of Germany complex in South America."

Capital Society At Soviet Fete

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 (AP)—Capital society went Russian in a big way last evening.

Several hundred officials, diplomats and society folk attended a twilight reception at the Soviet embassy in observance of the 21st anniversary of the Bolshevist revolution.

Jews Must Have Hebrew Signboards

VIENNA, Nov. 8 (AP)—Police today ordered all Jewish business firms and craftsmen to display their names and addresses in Hebrew characters at least as large as the German letters on their signboards after November 15.

Nazis Disarming Jews in Berlin

BERLIN, Nov. 8 (AP)—Count Wolf Von Helldorf, chief of Berlin police, announced today he was "disarming" Berlin's Jews and that he had seized quantities of arms and ammunition in the last few weeks.

The announcement was made while Nazis were taking reprisals against Jews for the shooting of a German embassy secretary in Paris by a young Polish Jew, but the roundup of arms began some time before the Paris shooting.

It was disclosed that a systematic search had been made and that all weapons for which special permits were lacking were seized.

The police chief said 1702 firearms, 20,000 rounds of ammunition and 2569 steel knives or knuckles had been found on Jews and that the search was continuing.

Anti-Jewish reprisals were reported from two German towns while the government banned all Jewish publications until further notice.

At Kassel a mob forced entrance into a synagogue and destroyed its furniture after a demonstration in front of Jewish stores against the attack upon Ernst Vom Rath, secretary of the German embassy in Paris, by Herschel Grynszpan, 17-year-old Polish Jew.

A similar anti-Semitic demonstration occurred at Bebra. Crowds assembled outside the synagogue and Jewish stores, but refrained from violence.

Hitler Sends Doctors to Aide

PARIS, Nov. 8 (AP)—The French press predicted today that measures to restrict German Jewish refugees in France would evolve from the shooting here of a Nazi diplomat by a young Polish Jew.

The Paris newspapers reported that the German embassy asked that Herschel Grynszpan, 17, be extradited to Germany for trial because is attack upon Ernst von Rath, its secretary, occurred in the embassy building which is considered German territory.

Extradition would be most difficult, however, since French law provides against extradition for political crime.

Two doctors sent by Chancellor Hitler from Berlin—Dr. Brandt, his personal physician, and Prof. Georg Magnus, director of Munich University Surgical Clinic—arrived to attend Vom Rath.

They went immediately to the hospital, where the diplomats condition was considered "very grave." It was expected that a second operation to remove a bullet from his abdomen would be performed. A bullet was removed from his right shoulder yesterday.

Ex-Convict Hunted in Girl Attack

BROCKTON, Nov. 8—Police here today sought an ex-convict, who already has served a sentence for sex crimes, as the man who seized and attacked 16-year-old Eva Harriman, Hayward street, Brockton.

Two suspects already have been questioned, but the girl was unable to identify either of them. Certain neither of these men were her assailant, she told police.

"I'll never forget his voice. I'm sure I can identify him if you catch him."

The girl, gagged and with her arms bound, staggered into her home after the attack which took place, she said, in a vacant lot not far from where she lives.

She was walking home when her assailant seized her, she said.

The man, she said, threatened to bash her head in with a rock if she made any outcry.

Other women living in the same neighborhood reported being molested by a man answering the description of Miss Harriman's assailant.

Raider Sinks Another Ship

LONDON, Nov. 8 (AP)—Lloyds' agent at Cromer reported today that a British Royal Air Force plane had sighted a cargo ship sinking about five miles west of Wandelaar lightship, off the Belgian coast, with the Spanish Insurgent auxiliary cruiser Nadir standing by.

The plane landed at Norfolk airdrome after a flight over the North Sea and her pilot reported sighting a ship "resembling the Spanish armed cruiser Nadir standing by a sinking cargo vessel ten miles off Blankenbergh, Belgium."

This was communicated immediately to British coast defense authorities.

The Nadir last Wednesday bombarded and sank the Spanish government merchantman Cantabria, chartered by British operators, within sight of Cromer, on the Norfolk coast.

(Another insurgent auxiliary cruiser, the Ciudad De Alicante, later in the week captured the government freighter Rio Mira and took her into the German port of Essen.)

Bible Verse Halts Boy's Broadway Crime Career

NEW YORK, Nov. 8 (AP)—A religious pamphlet containing the phrase, "Jesus died for you," was cited today by Robert Zlomke, 21, of Garden Island, Neb., as causing him to abandon a projected holdup career along New York's gay White Way.

Detective Jerry Lyons said the youth, armed with a revolver and 14 cartridges, told of having hitchhiked across the country from Modesto, Cal., to engage in a crime sortie.

Police quoted Zlomke as saying he stopped a man near City Hall Park, intending to rob him, but didn't when the man gave him a little red religious book with the cigarette he asked for.

"I tried to hold up three other men downtown, but somehow I always got frightened at the last minute," the youth said. "It was that verse I read in the little red book about 'Jesus died for you.' After that I just couldn't rob anybody, though I tried."

YOU ARE SAFE
WHEN JENNEY PREPARES YOUR CAR FOR WINTER

Jenney Lubricants of winter grade will not congeal nor channel even in sub-zero weather. Shifting of gears is easy, and every moving part is safely lubricated.

Jenney Solvenoil—the Extreme Pressure Motor Oil—is 100% Pennsylvania oil improved by a patented process. It flows freely in zero weather and leaves a film on metal parts that does not drain off. Research shows that the greatest period of wear is during cold-weather starting. But when you start on a cold morning with Jenney Solvenoil, a protective film of oil is already on all moving parts. This makes starting easier, reduces drag on the battery, and prevents costly wearing of metal parts.

Jenney Solvenized Gasoline chases carbon and also contains a fine top-cylinder lubricant which protects valves, rings, cylinder walls and pistons the instant your motor turns over.

Cold weather comes without warning. Don't take a chance by delaying. A few minutes at a Jenney station today may save you hours and dollars later. Come in now, and be safe.

New Mexico Thousands To Cast 'Paid for' Votes

TAKE POLITICS OUT OF RELIEF

Citizens, before you vote, ask these questions of all candidates for Congress:

"Do you stand for the principle that there must be no political control or influence in the handling of relief funds, pump-priming money, agricultural benefit money or social security money?

"Do you favor the principle of having all such public expenditures supervised by a non-partisan, non-political board employing civil service personnel?

"Do you pledge yourself to work for the proper measures to put these principles into practical operation?"

By JACK STEVENS
(Los Angeles Examiner Staff Reporter)
Special to Boston Evening American

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Nov. 7—Today, New Mexico voters go to the polls to choose a governor and congressman, along with nearly all other county and state offices, except Senator.

Thousands of the votes to be cast already have been bought and paid for by the injection of off-color politics into Works Progress Administration relief, it has been charged.

One such vote is that of a WPA truckman — one of a "white collar" man, according to information in the hands of prosecution forces.

GIVEN ORDERS

In order to hold his job he often was "given orders" to haul away materials at night from WPA projects.

Here's his story, as learned by the Examiner:

"Sometimes I drive around all day, running up truck miles without hauling anything. That was before the grand jury moved in on the boys.

"On an average of two nights a week we would get written orders to go to a sidewalk project and pick up sacks of cement.

"I knew there was something fishy about it because the written orders called for one thing and we had instructions to do another.

"Just for fun one day, I put pencil marks on several bags of cement I was hauling.

"A couple of days later I delivered the same cement to another WPA sidewalk project.

"Maybe it had been sold over again."

NOW HE THROWS ROCKS

By putting politics into relief in New Mexico, the New Dealers took much of the work out of the Works Progress Administration, it is claimed.

There's the story about a new WPA recruit.

"When I went out on the Albuquerque grade separation job the first day, everyone started in when the whistle blew, this man said.

"I kept on working. I noticed that only a few were doing anything. Finally, I was about the only one still working.

"I was moving lumber from one pile to another. Why, I don't know.

"Something hit me in the back. I didn't think much of it, until a shower of rocks began hitting me.

"I looked around. About 20 fellows, sitting in the shade, were throwing the rocks at me.

"One of them yelled to me, 'We've done enough work today and you better knock off if you know what's good for you.'

"It wasn't many days until I joined the rock throwers."

DENVER, Nov. 8 (AP)—A black Australian swan for which the seasons are reversed hatched a brood of five cygnets in a snowbank here.

Study Politics 'Bar Funds' Plan

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 (AP)—Chairman Sheppard (D.) of Texas, said today the Senate campaign committee, in drafting recommendations to Congress, will consider a proposal to outlaw political use of federal funds.

The proposal, he said, contemplates a specific prohibition not only against using WPA funds or influence in elections, but also federal money allocated to state governments.

He listed three other problems as among the most important to be considered: Congressional control of primary campaign expenditures, clarification of the law governing contributions to candidates by federal employes, and restriction of the franking privilege.

Students May Sue in Robbery

Two sophomores at Harvard University today threatened the college with a suit for $350, representing losses through robberies in Leverett House, which they claimed was due to "inadequate protection."

The students are Roger B. Linscott and Robert B. Ridder. They claim their rooms were looted despite the fact that doors and windows were all locked.

Colonel Charles Apted, chief of the yard police, said redoubled precautions were being taken to make the university safe for all students.

Only One Secret Left Mrs. America---Her Vote

NEW YORK, Nov. 8 (INS)—On her way to market this morning, Mrs. American stopped in at the neighborhood school, gave her name to a couple of persons behind a long table and was admitted to a curtained booth to register her opinion on the candidates who had been stamping up and down her state and shouting through her radio for a month or longer.

Tonight, she and Mr. America, who got up before breakfast to vote, will know how their opinions stack up with those of their neighbors.

What neither of them may realize is that the votes they cast today are the only secrets left to them in a nation of gold fish bowl laws.

The federal government through the Income Tax Department knows how much Mr. America made last year and whether that fifty bucks he lent to his brother-in-law—the "unfortunate one"—is docketed under "bills receivable."

The Social Security Department knows where Mr. America is working.

The Census Department knows the ages of both Americas, how many children they have, whether or not they own a radio, and a lot of other things.

The life insurance companies know when Mr. and Mrs. America are apt to die.

And the Credit Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce knows whether it will be safe to sell the survivor a monument on installments.

But nobody knows how they voted or will vote today.

RANNY WEEKS
Looks Over Song

Weeks Now In Scramble For Song Hit

With a brand new band to direct the well known Club Mayfair for a locale and eagerness to again hold forth as a popular Hub maestro for dancing, Ranny Weeks is ready and waiting for his premiere setting in Boston, scheduled for tomorrow night.

Ranny is also caught up in the whirlpool of agitation over the new song called "Please Come Out of Your Dream" which local orchestra men are sparing no effort to secure for playing as soon as permission from the copywright owners can be obtained.

Ranny Weeks did a ceremony mastering job above par when the Vallee-Goodman battle of "Swing vs. Straight" raged at Boston Garden recently. He claims he had the "Please Come Out of Your Dream" tip straight from Rudy Vallee and has his bid filed with Words and Music, the tune publishers, so that no Boston musical aggregation will be likely to beat the Ranny Weeks melody men.

In addition to the interest Weeks is showing, it also comes to hand that wires have reached the publishing firm from Pete Herman, the leader of the Casa Manana group, urging that his orchestra be granted the necessary consideration so that his outfit may feature the new composition at the new rendezvous along Huntington avenue.

Quins' Tonsils And Adenoids To Be Removed

CALLANDAR, Ont., Nov. 8 (INS)—The Dionne quintuplets are going to have their tonsils and adenoids removed Wenesday morning in their famous Dafoe nursery here.

What will be perhaps the most noted multiple tonsillectomy in medical history will be performed by Dr. Allan Brown, Toronto baby specialist, assisted by a staff including special nurses from the children's hospital, Toronto.

Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, who brought the quins into the world and who has been in constant attendance on them since, decided today upon the operations after consultation with Dr. Brown.

BOARD APPROVES

"These operations," Dr. Dafoe said, "are undertaken only after very careful examination of the children, first by myself and then by Dr. Brown, who has been our consultant."

The surgery has been approved by all the members of the Dionne children's board of guardians, Dr. Dafoe added. The operations will follow one another in the nursery, which will be transformed into a completely modern operating room.

Every device known to science will be used to safeguard the Quins and insure success of the operations. This is the first time surgery has been necessary for the little girls and no greater care could be taken of royalty than will be accorded the quintuplets.

ALL IN PERFECT HEALTH

Announcing the details of the surgery, Keith Munroe, business managers of the Quins, said that the children are all in perfect health and are expected to recover quickly from their first operation.

For some time the quintuplets' tonsils have been bothersome, it was known. Severe colds suffered by the children last summer made it necessary that the tonsils and adenoids be removed before the raw northern winter sets in.

Holdup 'Victim' Arrests Bandit

James Foley, proprietor of a tavern in Fay street, South End, today disarmed and overpowered a man who, he said, had attempted to rob him at gunpoint.

Then he dragged the man to a police box and sounded an alarm.

Foley had left his place of business to enter his car, parked nearby, when the bandit stepped up and demanded his money, he told police.

Foley said he knocked the gun out of the man's hand and delivered a punch on his chin.

40,000,000 Go To Polls in U. S.

By GEORGE R. HOLMES

International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—An off-year political campaign that waxed hot only in its closing stages came to an end today with the trek of nearly 40,000,000 voters to ballot boxes.

By nightfall they will have determined the makeup of the 76th Congress, the political complexion of 32 state governments, and filled thousands of lesser offices in county and municipal governments.

Hidden beneath this avalanche of votes will be that which the party chiefs of both major parties hope ultimately will be the deciding factor in the 1940 election—the trend for 1940 when a President is to be elected.

In many respects it is the most important election of the past four years. There is little question concerning Democratic victories on the score that both houses of Congress will remain overwhelmingly Democratic as they now are.

The Republicans do not even pretend that they can regain the control they lost in 1930.

END OF LANDSLIDES?

But the Republicans do seek and were strong in the belief that the decisive margin of Democratic landslides began in 1930 and for would end in close contests extending through 1942, 1944, and 1946 is at an end.

The Republicans believe and most Democrats concede it off the record that the pendulum is going to reverse after eight straight years of swinging in one direction.

If the Republicans today can win back fifty or fifty seats in the House of Representatives five or six seats in the Senate and score a half-dozen governorships all of which is possible then they will feel their feet are on the comeback trail.

Stimulated and rejuvenated by such a victory they will start immediately to organize for 1940 behind those candidates who have demonstrated their ability to win votes and influence people.

EYES ON OHIO, N. Y.

But it is upon two states principally—New York and Ohio—that the party Wars have been eyes fastened. This is largely due to the pivotal character of the states, their large vote in the electoral college the number of Presidents they have sent to Washington in the past, and the personalities involved.

In 1936 President Roosevelt carried the Democratic ticket to a million vote victory in his home state. In Ohio, the Democratic plurality was in excess of several. Yet in the two states today the Republicans are furnishing the Democrats with the stiffest sort of opposition. Indeed the Republicans are claiming them both and the Democrats concede them to be close.

In New York a veteran hard hitting Republican debater and orator, Thomas E. Dewey is matched the politicos by giving Governor Herbert H. Lehman the fight of his political life. He has the Democrats really worried and it is not improbable that the issue may be decided by whether Lehman can get right off where free and in votes are cast.

Jim Farley is not as beaming as of yore in this state. His last-minute bet on Lehman to defeat but there are those who will dispute with him.

Odds, at such the Republicans can likewise mention by sports to give the same figure which a famous jockey in one of the nightmare [illegible]

In Ohio both sides concede a "very close" between Senator Robert J. Bulkley and his Republican opponent, Robert A. Taft, [illegible] of a distinguished Republican name, and, if he wins, certain to be reckoned with when they start making up a national ticket two years hence.

Some Republicans in fact have already started dreaming of a Taft-Dewey ticket in 1940.

CHANCE IN N. E.

But New York and Ohio are not the only spots where the Republicans hope to make gains. They are fairly confident in Pennsylvania where mud-slinging reached a new all-time high in this campaign.

They believe they have good prospects in Rhode Island, where another famous name has been put on the Republican ticket for governor, William K. Vanderbilt, in Connecticut and New Hampshire and perhaps in New Jersey.

In the grain belt states the Democrats are plagued, and the Republicans correspondingly encouraged by the slump in the prices for farm commodities and the grumbling of the farmers over the acreage allotments of the new farm act.

Kansas, Iowa, Nebraska, Minnesota and Wisconsin are regarded with hopeful anticipation by the Republicans. Also Michigan, where the New Deal governor, Frank Murphy is being pushed to the utmost by the man he defeated two years ago, ex-Governor Frank Fitzgerald. Twice in recent weeks President Roosevelt has come to the aid of Murphy by defending his handling of the sit-down strikes.

RACE IN CALIFORNIA

In the Far West, chief interest centers in California, where the Democrats have a real chance to gain control of the state government by the election of Culbert Olson as governor. Democratic registration in California is more than 850,000 ahead of the Republican registration.

In a number of states various advanced types of old age pension plans will be decided today too including California's famous $30 every Thursday idea.

ing place in Allston street, using the name of Dexter Smith of Warren street.

In Cambridge a tense situation developed as opponents of the Plan E city manager, form of municipal government were reported attempting to intimidate voters.

Jeremiah J. Downey treasurer of the Cambridge Committee for Plan E, demanded that Chief of Police Timothy F. Leahy send officers to polling places in five stations, where he said members of the fire department were unlawfully seeking to influence voters.

Downey charged that firemen had parked automobiles "almost up against the buildings" and had plastered the cars with "Vote No on Plan E" placards.

Firemen, themselves were campaigning against Plan E near polling places, carrying their activities beyond legal limits, Downey claimed.

In Lynn campaign workers and several local candidates stormed the office of Mayor J. Fred Manning, protesting against what they said were "too severe" measures taken by police to halt polling place activity.

They claimed police officers were refusing to let campaign workers distribute cards and literature in the streets even beyond the 150 foot deadline.

So emphatic did the protests become that Mayor Manning finally instructed Chief of Police Edward D. Callahan to let political workers alone if they did not approach polling places too closely.

PLAN E GOES BRAINTREE

Four Braintree voters were amazed when they tried to recognize names on ballots handed them at the polling place.

Then they discovered they were apparently expected to vote on Plan E, city manager, form of government for their town.

The confusion was straightened out by Braintree election officials who found that a package of 100 Cambridge ballots had been delivered to Braintree by mistake.

Boston After Dark

By GEORGE HOLLAND

THE MOST DRAMATIC SIDELIGHT of Election Eve was the sudden appearance of "Curley money" along the betting marts . . . It was present in slithers, stacks and bundles last night and early today . . . At one depository, $70,000 was reported available at the "prevailing odds" . . . And there were smiling guides who could direct Saltonstall backers to the proper person and place.

GEORGE HOLLAND . . . There were takers a plenty at these prices, but enough restraint was shown in slipping the elastic bands off the Curley-ites bankrolls to keep the odds hovering around 2 to 1.

James M. Curley lost the only two fights (against Lodge and Tobin) in which he was installed a favorite in the betting.

Not since Former Governor Joseph B. Ely won his second term has a favorite been returned the victor in a gubernatorial race contest in a battle for the Boston mayoralty. Nichols was a slight favorite when Mansfield won. Hurley was a slight favorite over Hurley . . . Curley was the favorite in the Tobin fight . . . In the recent primary the betting made Governor Hurley a 10-7 choice against the field.

Whether it was strategy or superstition, if Curley wins the "wise money" boys of Boston's sporting fraternity will pay grudging tribute to the master-minding which kept Curley a long-shot long enough for his followers to take reams of "Saltonstall money" at generous odds . . . It is this column's opinion that more money has been bet on the governorship fight than on any local political contest in years.

The odds of the past week might seem to give the lie to this verdict, but some of the largest gamblers in Boston were crying "enough" as the citizens were resting last night in preparation for today's battle of ballots.

Once Over Lightly:

There was a heart-throb attached to the return to a night club floor of lovely Frances Williams . . . The blonde, willowy star of famous musical shows of a few seasons ago had been missing so long that her admirers thought she had quit . . . Her voice is clear as a bell, and her delivery as effective as always.

She sang "By Myself," from "Between the Devil," "Those Foolish Things," and "Manhattan"—all especially arranged . . . Two audiences at the Cocoanut Grove acclaimed her . . . Co-featured with Miss Williams are Gomez and Winona . . . One of the few top ranking "ballroom" dance-teams, this couple makes most of their rivals seem like amateurs . . . They are perfect in grace and appeal, with a real versatility in style.

Dainty little Claire Nevulis, who was one of the "actors" in the illustrated story "When a Cabot Loves a Kelly," made her professional debut as a night-club singer at the Casa Manana last night . . .

The South Boston miss has charm, a real voice and presence . . . If Pete Herman, maestro at the Casa, decides to employ a vocalist with his excellent band, a very good prospect is the same Miss Nevulis, it would seem to us . . .

Homer, the "human echo," is mystifying the audiences at the Casa Manana this week . . . Homer is something to study, and absolutely unique in the entertainment field . . . The Brown Derby had a premiere of a new show, and your reporter will have a report on it soon . . .

Tomorrow night is the date of Ranny Weeks' return to Boston as leader of the band and star baritone of the Cleo Mayfield unit show . . . The occasion will be a sell-out, and Ranny's friends will be thankful for the reminder that the walls of the Brattle Hall night club are not made of rubber, and that it will be advisable to make the reservations at once.

The Bill Coleman bachelor dinner is a secret no longer . . . It will be held next Monday night in the Copley-Plaza main ballroom. The demand for admission was comparable to the interest in the recent Army-Notre Dame game, according to David J. White, Benedict-to-be Coleman a fellow-member of the Engineers' Club, who is in charge of arrangements . . . The Coleman-Albani (Eleanor) wedding will take place the 17th . . .

Senator George Moyse, chairman of the legislative committee on the World's Fair, will keep a date in New York with Grover Whalen after election . . . The Senator has been ailing, but is better . . . A national magazine soon will feature a four-page layout of the Dempsey-Vanderbilt Hotel in Miami. Ben Ginsburg, the Boston night club bonifacce, is the hotel's active proprietor . . .

Boston, where there are said to be more victims of parasites proportionately than in any other large city, will be interested in an article called "The Sinus Racket," which is appearing in a national magazine this month.

'Boys From Syracuse' Proves Enchanting Musical Comedy

Cris Cross Spencer is apt to do a [illegible] bit-compelling [illegible] Miss Murray's leading number "What Can You Do With A Man," so it might be well to enlist the unemployed before long. Her "Oh Dearest" and He and She [illegible] with Savo and Albert down relays are full of that Rodgers-Hart something that put Ta Ta Farewell, I Married An Angel and [illegible] On Your Toes and Simple Song in the hit class.

The [illegible] by George Balanchine are [illegible] to look at, specifically the artistically blended tap-[illegible] Betty Bruce does and the first-act one performed by Miss Bruce, Heidi Vosseler and George Church. The second act ballet by Savo, Albert, Miss Vosseler, Miss Murray, Church, Buddy Douglas and the dancers, was beautifully done but somewhat out of key with the promising first-half of the play.

Jo Mielziner's scenery [illegible] a museum piece in a carbon[illegible] setting the scene in accenting the gaudy and provocativeness of the modern interpretation of an ancient theme.

Second-act changes are [illegible] considered by Producer Abbott. Doubtless he will correct the too-modern treatment in favor of the completely unreal atmosphere created in the [illegible] beginning.

Abbott's tabloid description of his latest stage offering is "an adolescent's dream of ancient Greece." If that was a dream, don't pinch us awake. "The Boys From Syracuse" is as enchanting a dream as you'll ever have, at home or abroad, and next to the Syracuse boys Savo and Albert we'll take the lads from Ephesus, Big Brother Larry Hart's Little Brother Teddy and Ronald Graham, as our favorite dream-makers.

Warners Plan 'Brother Rat' Sequel Film

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor, International News Service

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 8.—If Jo Albert clicked in "Brother Rat"—that we all know. But Warners' problem has been to find him a follow-up that would give him the same type of characterization.

Accordingly, Jerry Wald and Julius Epstein have delved into their files. Hal Wallis also took them original script, "Take It a Purple Pup," which failed to click when Joe E. Brown starred in the film. Then asked the writers to get busily to work on the sequel to "Brother Rat."

It is a swell idea. It's a sequel to "Brother Rat" in every way but one. Instead of being the same character Jo Albert is playing, he becomes a young professor at the college. However, Jo is a Purple Pup with the tricks of a young professor, the wiles and the struggle to meet a limited budget. Jane Bryan again plays the wife with Wayne Morris and Priscilla Lane as their two young friends.

Asking "natural" if I ever heard one is the chap of Sonny Mayo. Rosenbloom as Joe Palooka of the funny pictures. Maxie sometimes acts more like comic strip Joe than the Palooka himself. But before he can get started on his first starring role there seems to be a sad taint the idea and actually getting it on the screen.

The main hitch is that Edward Small owns the rights to "Joe Palooka." He produced it six years ago with Stuart Erwin, and his copyright holds good for all other year. The success of the comic strip "Blondie" in movie form probably will give more than one producer the idea of reading the funny papers for hit ideas.

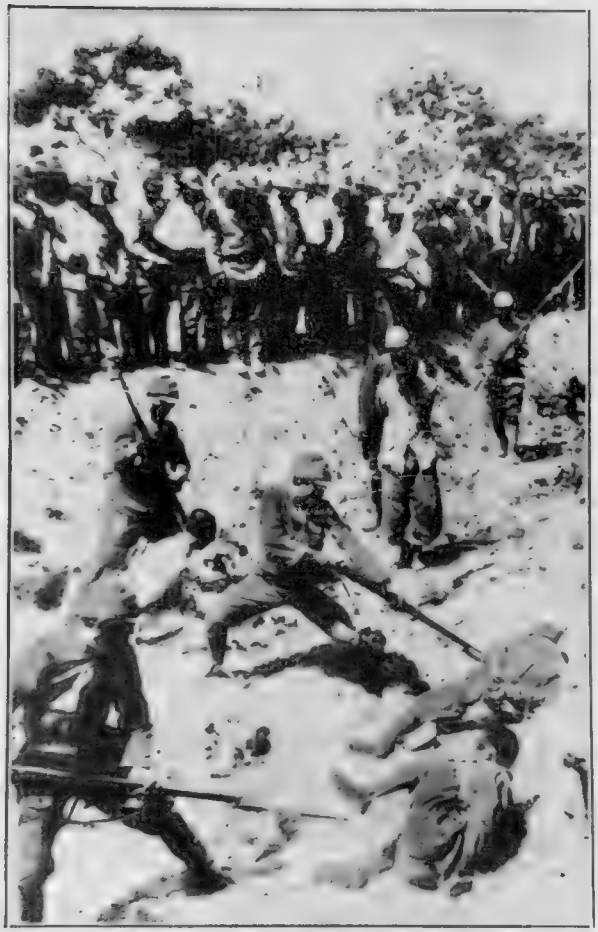
Death for Chinese



Atrocity—Unusual picture bears out reports of Japanese atrocities . . . showing Japanese soldiers bayonetting five Chinese prisoners. (These pictures are published by International News Photograph Service by courtesy of Look Magazine.)

Buried alive by Japanese, this Chinese group huddles in hole waiting for dirt to be tossed over them . . . part of terrorist drive in China.

KEEP OUT!

The Editor Says:

[illegible] Keep America as the freedom [illegible] is America Last. In [illegible] as WE MUST RESIST BY FASCISM AND COMMUNISM.

[illegible] of gratification that if we do not [illegible] our own shores, the beloved country we shall have [illegible] Italy, Austria, Rumania and Japan have been [illegible] Fascism because of the secret growth of Bundism in their midst.

As Joseph V. [illegible], new general manager of the Hearst papers, said in his address at New Orleans in denouncing Fascism, Nazism and Communism:

"The time for America to act is NOW."

CAN YOU TELL a criminal by his face? For years Science has asked that question. Now, Dr. Ernest A. Hooton, Harvard University's brilliant anthropologist, answers it.

"Crime is not an exclusively sociological phenomenon," says Dr. Hooton. "It has biological."

Basing his opinion on a study of 15,000 prisoners in nine States, he reports that the first degree murderer is apt to be square-shouldered and less abundantly hairy than other criminals.

Fortunately, Dr. Hooton is cautious. He advises that the day is still far distant when a criminologist will be able to detect a law-breaker by the size of his hat or the width of his shoes.

That is common sense. Nothing is more deceptive than looks. To prove this one has only to cover the captions under the pictures on a news paper and then try to guess each subject's place in life.

It is a fascinating game. We tried it once and the man we selected as the "murder type" happened to be an eminent scholar, distinguished for his wisdom and good works.

HIT-RUN ACCIDENTS anger Registrar Frank A. Goodwin, who issues an ultimatum that motorists must slow down as soon as darkness falls.

Responsible men and women will do that; it will not be necessary to arrest them or revoke their licenses.

But—and it is deplorable—not all persons at automobile wheels are responsible. There is a minority that persists in breaking the law and in endangering their own and other people's lives.

This is the group which ought to be driven from Massachusetts highways before December, long the bugaboo month for traffic safety.

The time to clamp down on a potential killer is BEFORE he takes a life.

"NEW ENGLAND DAYS", sponsored by large distributing organizations to hasten the return of prosperity to this section of the country, effectively refute the arguments of Texas Congressman Patman, author of legislation to tax chain stores out of existence.

During the first three days of this recovery campaign, buying orders totaling $2,404,000 were reported.

Independent stores of all sizes and kinds have found a ready market for their wares and services.

Muskets Still Useful in War

By EDWIN C. HILL

An editor in Des Moines [illegible] how he and his comrades with a squirrel gun would fight [illegible] war and [illegible] as well as Uncle Sam's [illegible] with [illegible] Senator Brookhart was telling what many other homespun Americans [illegible] that all we needed [illegible] to do was to revert to pioneer tactics, take down the rifle that hangs over the fireplace and slay the enemy in his tracks.

William J. Bryan probably had something like that in mind when he talked about "1,000,000 men springing to arms overnight." That was the kind of army you sprang to.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

SHE'S DEEPLY disturbed by her son's attitude towards their girl friends. In every other way they're mighty worthy boys, honest, good-natured, generous, hard-working, all that a proud mother might desire. But when it comes to women . . .

"THEY'RE SAVAGES!" she wails.

Of course, she hastily adds, the girls themselves are largely to blame. Brazen young things with no more manners than a flock of parrots! What a contrast with "the lovely, refined young ladies" of the '90's! But even so they are women. And as such "entitled to every consideration."

But do they get it? Does brawny Bill spring to his feet when fragile Fanny enters the room? Does cheerful Charlie insist—as every right-minded gentleman should—upon escorting his Lucille to her own doorstep after an evening's entertainment?

Not they! William remains where he is, merely grunts a welcoming "Hi-ya, kid." And Charlie in defiance of all decency, reveals that it'll take two hours to go to Lucille's "dump" and a taxi gotta work in the meantime. With an airy "Be seeing you!" he proceeds to drive himself home in his own flivver.

• • •

ALL OF WHICH is terrifying to Fanny, and to many of her generation. What can they do, be supposed to the world? And where is the end of men's failure to be courteous and considerate—and women's resignation to it, too?

With all due regard for your outraged feelings, sisters, it will probably end in a more happier and infinitely more honest relationship between the sexes.

Man can't be totally have greater respect for women or show them "more consideration" in the Good Ol' Days. They made, it is true, more fancy gestures. But if you want to know what the Lord of Creation really thought about his little Bright Eyes fifty years ago—read the laws he made concerning her. Study her civil status. See how many rights she actually had to her own liberty, her own property, her own children.

"MEN ONCE PLACED WOMEN ON A PEDESTAL."

They did, indeed. And the little dears thought it was a compliment! But it wasn't. No real reverence prompted that pedestal mania. Nor was it these laws attest. The lady was locked up to get her out of the way while her master pursued his own devices and for no other reason but!

• • •

IN SHORT when it comes right down to practical performance, women, under Chivalry, had the rating of an infant or an imbecile. And all the poetical palaver was just an elaborate bluff.

THERE IS MORE REAL CO-OPERATION AND CONSIDERATION IN AN HOUR OF MODERN BOY AND GIRL COMPANIONSHIP THAN THERE WAS IN A LIFETIME OF THE OLD BOWING AND SCRAPING.

IS Chivalry on its way out? I suspect so and I am glad. For something much finer and fairer is taking its place. The woman of the future will not be outwardly treated like an angel while actually rated as an idiot.

She will be treated AS A HUMAN BEING—AND GIVEN REGARD AND CONSIDERATION ACCORDING TO HER OWN ACCOMPLISHMENT.

And that is the only kind of regard any honest woman wants.

FUN-LOVING HARVARD STUDENTS INSPIRE HIS FLIGHTS OF FANCY
George M. Jackson, Janitor-Poet at University's Leverett House

Girl About Town

by Marjorie McBride

MAYBE YOU'VE never considered Harvard students as an inspiration to poetry but to George M. Jackson, veteran janitor at Harvard's Leverett House they are just that.

Jackson's been around Harvard for a long time, long enough to know many of the boys as they've grown up. He's a humorist. He sees and sizes up certain traits of the students as they come and go.

Jackson with pen No. 2 for [illegible] has written a few verses which he says are "nothing extraordinary" but which we think are pretty good. Here's one:

H—— Fisher Cozzens Russell was a wise man, it's true,
And with all the privilege of being upperclass by Harvard Square Yard George has never been for ideas.

One of his latest themes in part follows
I have danced with the wenches
And among the jocks as well,
I have met the famous people
Great and small.
But in my perambulations,
I find that my relations
With the Harvard student seem to lend them all!

Biscuit Dough Trims Left-Overs Deliciously

By MARTHA LEE

Why not let biscuit dough help in "balancing the budget"? It can do its part by helping to extend the goodness of other more expensive foods. With biscuit foundation and a little ingenuity the homemaker can make a small amount of leftover meat, fish, poultry or fruit and make the result remarkably delicious and economical. For instance, canned boned corned beef, with chili sauce or horseradish sauce, makes a hasty supper dish and is almost child's play to prepare.

The following biscuit foundation is used in the corned beef roll and also for a grand diamond meat pie.

BISCUIT FOUNDATION

2 cups sifted flour
½ tsp. salt
2 tsp. baking powder
2 tbs. fat, shortening
½ to ¾ cup milk

Sift together flour, salt and baking powder. Cut in fat or shortening. Add milk to make a soft dough, stirring just enough to make ingredients hold together. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead gently for a half minute. Roll or pat out to desired thickness.

CORNED BEEF ROLL

Biscuit foundation
2 cups minced corned beef

Roll out biscuit dough in a rectangular sheet ¼ inch thick. Spread corned beef with a fork. Spread on biscuit dough. Roll as you would a jelly roll and seal edge. Place on ungreased baking sheet in moderately hot oven (425 deg. F.) 20 to 25 minutes. Serve hot with chili sauce or horseradish sauce. Yield: About 12 one inch slices.

DIAMOND MEAT PIE

Biscuit foundation
1 cup lean beef, cubed
1 tbs. fat
1 tbs. flour
1 cup diced potatoes
1 cup diced carrots
1 cup peas
1 cup tiny celery
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper

Melt fat in baking dish. Add meat and brown well. Add flour, stirring until smooth. Add vegetables and seasoning. Mix lightly, cover and bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 45 minutes. Remove cover and put diamond shaped biscuits over top of pie. Return to hot oven (450 deg. F.) for 15 to 20 minutes. To make diamond shaped biscuits, roll out biscuit dough into rectangular sheet ½ inch thick. With a sharp knife cut diagonally across dough first one way then the other.

PINEAPPLE TURNOVERS

2 cups sifted flour
2 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
2 tbs. sugar
4 tbs. shortening
2 eggs, beaten
1 tsp. grated lemon rind
1 cup crushed pineapple (drained)

Sift flour, baking powder, salt and sugar together. Cut in fat, shortening into flour mixture to consistency of coarse meal. Add milk to form a soft dough. Then, cut on lightly floured board and knead gently about a half minute. Roll out into rectangular sheet ¼ inch thick. Cut into strips 3 inches wide and 6 inches long. Brush with melted butter. Place a spoonful of pineapple in one half of each strip. Fold the other end of the strip over the fruit. Press edges together with tines of a fork. Bake in hot oven (450 deg. F.) 20 minutes. Serve hot or cold with cream or fruit sauce. Yield: 8 turnovers.

GOOD VALUE and good business for New England
SILVER GERMICIDE
ANTISEPTIC-DEODORANT
A Product of New England

IF YOU'RE a small girl who has always been green-jealous of the big girls who can sling a tremendous portmanteau under their arms, thus managing an air of extreme chic, your day has come at last! David Lewis, noted bag designer, says it isn't the size of the bag that was bad for you, but the cut of its jib. You too can carry a young trunk, but it must be fairly shallow, with its bulk confined to length.

On the other hand, anyone who slips into the size 40 or over class should take care not to carry a bag with puffy width or puffy, swag-like lines. A dressmaker bag with crushed, soft, oval-shaped drapery, yes. Or an ideal bag is thin and squared-off for her.

David Lewis, bag designer, has discovered these new ideas of "proportioning" and following through in harmonizing design to really show off an ensemble. The girls in a Boston shop displaying Mr. Lewis' designs have been thoroughly coached in choosing according to these ideas.

Illustrated is one of his designs, showing a glorious leather bag with soft, twistable handles. It complements the square-shouldered lines of the costume perfectly.

If you'd like to learn where you may see these designs and hear more about correct "proportioning" and getting the utmost in fashion significance in your bag-and-clothes ensembling, phone Annne Brink, Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000, week-days until five, or write her at the Boston American.

YOU CAN BE BEAUTIFUL

Here's Eye Cream With Allure Aplenty

By ARLINE GOULD

YOU CAN'T win friends and influence people if your eyes haven't that certain umph. You can look umph right out of them if you know how, or you can make them up so cleverly that they'd make any susceptible male dizzy with one glance.

It's a long gone day since eye shadows and mascaras were considered artificial looking. Or perhaps it is simply because they've been so marvelously improved that they blend and emphasize with sheer sorcery. They're the surest way of sprinkling your eyes with stardust and making them pools of pure allure.

You'll never get this one look into your eyes and I am lost — effect merely by trucking out some mascara and eye shadow. There's something more to it than that. First you have to eradicate the little lines plowed up by birthdays and all sorts of other travail . . . and you'll not find anything much better than a little black bucket of eye cream. It looks like the soul of peaches, smells tempting and turns into a rich liquid oil at the slightest contact with body heat.

Use it right after night. By day you should coat your lids gleamingly with a thin film of it.

It's not a very big bucket, but it has a lot of richness jammed into it, and its costly cells are well worth twice as much as its regular dollar price. This week you can really catch up on your eye allure, for the eye cream is to be given by its makers with each purchase of a dollar or more.

Of you can ask to your use of cream a [illegible] dollar or their representative for the new lipstick and [illegible] a harmonizing rouge. She Has Case Against Long Engagements

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

[illegible] past three years [illegible] engaged, and I [illegible] to marry me [illegible] to marry me [illegible] of work. [illegible] I'm [illegible] two.

[illegible] in another city, where I [illegible] and he writes [illegible] very often and [illegible] I see. He used to take me out a lot when he had regular work, but now he is tired of waiting. [illegible] are trying to get a job so [illegible] break my engagement. But [illegible] to do it when I [illegible] love [illegible] he wants me [illegible] and [illegible] money.

Do you advise [illegible] wait [illegible] he loses [illegible] of getting [illegible] work? Or [illegible] I write [illegible] things get better and we [illegible] marry? He is already [illegible] every way.

WATCHFUL WAITING.

Waiting would not be so hard for you if you really loved [illegible] enough to marry him [illegible] are many girls in your same [illegible] dreament. But if you're [illegible] each other devotedly, waiting [illegible] not seem so hard, which [illegible] the supreme test. Talk [illegible] with the young man, and [illegible] some sort of arrangement [illegible] would leave you both free to [illegible] with other girls and boys [illegible] meantime.

Know Your Social Etiquette

What a contrast between Peggy and Sue! Peggy's smooth [illegible] with bids to all the proms and [illegible] football games. But awkward Sue has to depend on her brother to take her places.

You can see Peggy knows just what to do when Jack asks for a dance while she sits out one with Ted. She knows its incorrect to leave a set-out date, so she [illegible] [illegible] refuses.

So easy to be sure of yourself when you know little etiquette points. Invited to college for a football week-end, do you wonder who pays for what? You pay your train fare there and your host's. Your date pays for your theater tickets and dinners.

On the street don't grasp a man's arm and hang on for dear life. Remember, he'll offer his arm if you need help.

And if you want to show your appreciation for a movie date don't crudely say "Thank you for your beau," say instead, "I've had such a pleasant time."

Don't guess about etiquette! Let our 40-page booklet, "Etiquette for the Teens," give you social [illegible] with tips on dancing dates, dining, motoring, telephone etiquette.

"The DOCTOR" by MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

Should Doctor Marry? Chris Arden Asks

CHAPTER 14

Dr. Chris Arden loved his work. He had the hands of the born surgeon, both gentle and strong. And, although he was unconscious of it, the dramatic side of the business appealed to him.

When at night he rode up in the elevator past the silent floors to the operating room the sense of being a part of the drama of short nights was strong in him.

But going home, through the night or the gray early morning, weary but confident, the exaltation would die; and as he neared the house he would become once again merely an everyday young man worrying about coal for the furnace or the rent, and with a feeling that the curtain had rung down on something rather magnificent and had left him somewhere outside in the dark.

That was the [illegible] of the life. What about the [illegible]?

Somehow somewhere [illegible] intimacy he was [illegible] and himself had been [illegible].

For one thing he had been [illegible] credibly kind and [illegible] the season and she was [illegible]. He had seen her [illegible]. Once or twice he had [illegible] house in response to a [illegible] note but she was never [illegible].

He would [illegible] and straighten [illegible] around [illegible] talk and [illegible] cheerful, cheerless business [illegible] although she was glad to see him and showed it, even his youth and his good looks could not entirely offset the fact that he was a worker among the drones.

"What? No [illegible]? Not sick are you?"

Working hours, he would say with his disarming smile, "I do my hard drinking at night."

She watched him. He showed over their address and [illegible] was a young girl, but when [illegible] found our what [illegible] she appeared to find it slightly [illegible].

"Adrian. I [illegible] like one."

"Why [illegible]?"

"Well, where's the good-looking [illegible] ever [illegible]?"

"Give me the [illegible]."

HE WAS DIFFERENT

He was indulgent. He [illegible] mastiff with puppies [illegible] him but he was not entirely comfortable among them. It was not only that they [illegible] and therefore his profession, or even that laughing at [illegible] did not [illegible] of overcoming a sense of [illegible].

It was because they had nothing in common with him, or thought so, as if he required to be close apart, he [illegible] as if indeed having become a doctor he had in some strange way become less a man.

Looking back [illegible] that he was to see was that he [illegible] entirely [illegible] and that the real [illegible] their favorite [illegible] that medicine was a [illegible] science [illegible] and his own [illegible] to [illegible].

Over a [illegible] or [illegible] in the [illegible] he would [illegible] or in the night [illegible] hanging over [illegible] Lingel [illegible] story of [illegible] at the Lewis house.

Then one night he was to go there alone and Beverly had promised him a quiet evening and of all things on earth he had fallen asleep on a street car and wakened at the end of the line miles out of town.

He telephoned as soon as he could but she was annoyed and showed it.

"What in the world happened? Where are you?"

"I don't know exactly."

"You don't know?"

"Only approximately. You see, I was on a car, hurrying home for a divine evening with you. Then I shut my eyes for a minute—only a minute—and when I opened them again, I was here. The magic carpet. No less."

"You went to sleep?" she said incredulously. "That's not very flattering to me, is it? Of course if you think it's funny—"

Funny. My dear girl, I'm laughing for fear I'll weep."

She had laughed, too, at that, but he knew her pride and she had not replied to the invitation.

After all what was he to her or to that group around her, but something between a butcher and a glorified midwife? Young Ames grinning at him.

"How's the baby business these days?"

"Still paying dividends."

"By Jove, you fellows have a cinch. You get us coming and going. Even nature works for you!"

"We have to help her a bit now and then."

"Better change your mind and have a drink."

"I have some calls to make. I'll take tea instead."

"ROTTEN HUSBANDS"

Not coherent thinking, all this. It was a series of pictures in his mind of Beverly cool and lovely, trying to marshal her disorderly horde, of occasional glimpses of her mother; and even one encounter with Stanton Lewis in the hall, and his own sudden rigidity when he remembered Jake.

"Pretty noisy crowd, Doctor."

"They seem to like it," said Chris drily and passed on.

Oh for Heaven's sake stop it, he thought. She's not for me, nor I for her. But his mind went on automatically.

It was not that she would take the man's road while he took the [illegible]. It was the question of two lives with different objectives, not to be reconciled. Every woman, Beverly or any other, would demand and then claim the right to love and her own romance.

And what could he offer her? A tired man, irritable at times, worn with the burden of other people's troubles—a man who battled all day for power over sickness and death, and dared to abdicate only at night when at last he slept.

He remembered one of the interns months before laying down the law after the fashion of all interns.

We doctors make rotten husband.

"The h[illegible] we do. Who told you that?"

"Well look at it. A man who is [illegible] on getting somebody on medicine of some [illegible] one job and [illegible]. He can't strike a balance. Father has a good husband [illegible] a good doctor. He can't be both."

• • •

The room was [illegible] and after damning the [illegible] Chris went down and [illegible]. It did not soothe him to find that he left on the cellar had been [illegible] that the coal in the corner was getting low again.

Nobody had taken out the ashes and after a momentary hesitation he took off his coat and did that also. But the contrast between his recent memories of the Lewis house and his present occupation set him to grinning.

DICK RETURNS

He put down the ashes and [illegible] on the porch proceeded to dust himself as well as he could. Outlined against the soft snow in the yard was the shed where Henry had pursued his little experiments, and he stood gazing at it and thinking of the legacy Henry had left him.

He stared at the shed more closely. Certainly it had an unusual aspect. The next moment Caesar growled, and a figure detached itself from the shed as a familiar voice spoke.

DR. ARDEN BARS DICK from Walters home. He tells the shiftless, younger man: "You may see your mother and sister, and then you're getting out. I'm supporting them, but I won't support you!"

"Hello, Doc," he said. "Family still here?"

It was Dick. A different Dick, nattily dressed, but looking up at him with shifty eyes and his old impudent grin. "I've been throwing pebbles at the window up there but the old man sleeps pretty sound."

The old man's dead, Dick."

"Dead! When'd that happen?"

It was characteristic of Dick to express no grief, nor to feel any. He looked thoughtful for a moment and then came up the steps. "Might as well see Mother. She still here?"

"She is still here."

He looked relieved at that and stepped past Chris into the kitchen. "Same old smell," he commented briefly. "I'd know Mother's kitchen with my eyes shut. Well, I'll go up. Doc. Night. I suppose my old room's still there?"

Sudden anger flared in Chris. He blocked the way to the back stairs with his body and confronted Dick with his hands clenched in his pockets, afraid to draw them out.

"The room is there, but you're not using it. Get that, and get it now."

"Aw say, doc."

"You may see your mother and sister and then you're getting out. I'm supporting them, but I won't support you."

Who asked you to?"

"That's fine! And that's all there is to it. If I find you sneaking in that room, I'll drop you out the window. That goes for tonight and all the other nights."

DICK AND CASH

He waited until Dick had gone up the back stairs. Then he moved forward putting out the lights as he went, and climbed rather heavily up the stairs.

Dick did not stay. Chris falling into a heavy sleep after an hour or two of waiting, wakened in the morning to find that Dick had gone and that his own pockets had been neatly rifled of all the money he possessed.

He went down to his breakfast in a fury of humiliation. But Lily Walters defeated him that morning as up to the very end she was to defeat him. She was overflowing with happiness. Her faded eyes shone, and she had even tried to make herself neat. She beamed at him as she brought in his coffee.

"Wasn't it wonderful, Doctor? And he looked so well, too. Did you notice that suit he had on?"

"Very good and [illegible] than mine. Is he working?"

"He has been. He's a good boy, doctor. He even left me a little money. And he says there will be more where it came from."

Chris smiled grimly. "Did he tell you to tell me that?"

"Well he did. He said—"

But Chris was laughing. The impudence of Dick's farewell was part and parcel of the whole domestic situation. He looked helplessly and almost hysterically until even Lily became suspicious.

"I don't see what's funny, doctor."

"I'm sorry. I'm not laughing [illegible] Dick. Heaven forbid that I should laugh about Dick. He's been no laughing matter."

He wondered but she was still puzzled when she left the room. And Chris knew then that he could never tell her the truth. She had too little to take [illegible] what was left.

Yet later on he was to wonder whether he should not have done so after all, if he might not have saved her her final humiliation by so doing, perhaps even her life.

• • •

For all its apparent gaiety, the spring opened rather cheerlessly in the house on the hill. Beverly watching her mother, found her languid and rather withdrawn and suspected that she was sleeping badly.

Annie Lewis would get up, bathe slowly, dress meticulously. She had lost weight, and her handsome dresses hung loose on her; and her pallor was so marked that she had bought a box of rouge and kept it carefully hidden.

Now, when she sat in front of her dressing table, she rubbed in a little of the color, smoothing it carefully with her well-kept hands and then examining herself in a strong light. She could deceive Staunton, but she was afraid of Beverly's young eyes.

How long she could keep up the masquerade she did not know. She had made her decision carefully. There had been a time when something might have been done, but it meant mutilation, and there was no guaranty of cure; so she had sat in her chair in a New York surgeon's office and calmly shaken her head.

WAS IT TOO LATE?

"Not now. Perhaps later. You [illegible]" she had paused, groping for words. "It isn't only that I hate the idea. I'm afraid, of course. But even you admit that it is rather late, and I should like to go on as long as possible. Maybe you find that hard to understand, but a woman might. I think The instinct for perfection can be a terrible thing."

He had stared at her. "You are not telling me that you are weighing your life against a slight mutilation."

She had smiled faintly. "A chance for life and not [illegible] one. No doctor I was thinking of my husband."

Puck Contest Winners

An extra "surprize" of $5 cash and a diploma certifying him as "National Puzzle Champion" of the week.

That's what Julius Lakm, 4450 S. Troy street, Chicago, wins in recognition of his outstanding entry to the Hearst Comic Weekly-Puck Stars and Stripes Puzzle Club Contest which appeared in the Boston Sunday Advertiser October 30.

The "surprize" is awarded to mother Lakin in addition to the 10 1st 100 weekly Stars and Stripes Club prizes of $1 each.

And, while on the subject of prizes, club members should not forget they have one more shot at the great national $10,000 Hearst Comic Weekly-Puck Puzzle Contest, also a great "fun and finance" feature of the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

CHAMPION REPEATS

Vicki Kozitzky of Brookline, last week's national champion, came right back this week and won another prize. That's something to remember about your Stars and Stripes Club. All entries are judged solely on merit by impartial and conscientious puzzle experts. Which means a clubster can win every week — provided he's that good.

The boys again lagged behind the girls in Oct. 30 answers. Figures for the entire country showed them submitting a mere 40.9 per cent of the replies, while the girls sent 59.1. Even that was a gain on the previous week, however, so maybe the boys are getting ready to go to town.

Favorite puzzles, judging by the number of answers received were D'Jevers, Scrambled Comics, Whats-Its, Cowboy Target, and the Jumbled Pig.

LIST OF WINNERS

Another list of contest club winners will be announced by The Boston Daily American next Tuesday.

Names of New England winners of the Oct. 30 Stars and Stripes Contest Club prizes follow:

Massachusetts: Mary Thomson, 12 Tower street, Dedham; Mrs. Pearl Buchan, 57 Lincoln street, North Andover; Vicki Kozitzky, 57 Harvard avenue, Brookline; George L. The Case of Shore Versus the Bruins

IT WORRIES ME TO HEAR EDDIE SHORE'S salary twitter with the Boston Bruins. For 12 years he has been hockey's No. 1 box office lure. The galleries have called him sweetheart and, occasionally, obscenities. And the journalists called him the heart, liver and lungs of the Bruins. A hockey season would not seem a hockey season without Eddie skewering somebody on his stick, bashing out somebody's jiblets or spinning somebody on the heel of their trunks.

AUSTEN LAKE

This will make Shore's 13th season in Boston if he decides he can afford to play for the stipulated pay," which is somewhat more than the wage he received last year, or about $10,000.

I think, without being too audacious about it, one can guess that Shore will play again. He can't clear an aggregate of $10,000 running a reaper, trapping skins and raising little pig sausages. And he can't play for any other organized hockey team. So, after a suitable sulk, Eddie will lace on his form-fitting pads and skate again. Hockey is in his veins. The screaming sport page headlines, the hysterical human horseshoes, the rewards and round of hotel luxuries. He'll skate again.

[illegible] Shore [illegible] and been wrong [illegible] now [illegible] hockey right. We [illegible] him [illegible] January of 1927 when he was carrying his Separated [illegible] on a canvas cutout. We [illegible] counted him out five [illegible] ago when he suffered a [illegible] after returning to Boston [illegible] And [illegible] Eddie [illegible] Art Ross [illegible] for a good salary [illegible] by mail.

THREE WINTERS AGO FOLLOWING THE [illegible] Eddie [illegible] The [illegible] was [illegible] from [illegible] was [illegible] a [illegible] He said he wasn't [illegible] to [illegible] ranch and [illegible]

Well, he had that [illegible] immediately. He said it last [illegible] and [illegible] was [illegible] hockey [illegible] and [illegible] who wished to be [illegible] and [illegible]

Now what does he want? Why he wants a lot more sweetening in his salary now. He wants exactly what he received at the pinnacle of his career, the major share of the gate receipts, [illegible] and [illegible] as they say in the army. But the Bruins management [illegible] but without [illegible] that Shore in his post prime is too great a [illegible] at the old figure. He may come unhooked again and be a [illegible] as he was in '37.

Shux! They say, wasn't he paid in [illegible] two years ago when he came unhinged in January? Didn't he get full medical costs, his stipulated wage and cash extras? And four years ago when he was sentenced to [illegible] for his part in the Bruins' row, he didn't he draw his salary figure and cost of a month's sojourn, with wife, in Bermuda? So, they think, he ought to be content with a boost over last year and give a full conscientious money's worth of effort.

He Asked for One More Year

SHORE FEELS OTHERWISE. He maintains that he busted his bones, tore his hide and bruised his flesh and now, if he is a skip and a hop from his ultimate end, he has helped hockey to win recognition in Boston and make it a profitable form of entertainment. He

Shore Banned; 2 Bruins Hurt

By BILL GRIMES

Eddie Shore was denied the privilege of practicing with the Bruins when he reported to the club at the Arena this noon.

Manager Art Ross notified Shore that his case had been referred to President Frank Calder of the National Hockey League.

Shore was automatically suspended when he failed to sign before the Bruins opening game with Toronto.

Despite the fact he was not allowed to practice with the Bruins, Shore remained in the Arena and watched the practice.

Shore is demanding a salary of $12,000 while under the terms of the National Hockey League club is only permitted to pay him $7500 at the most.

Shore and Art Ross met with the Bruins each from their corner to arrange their positions.

GETLIFFE, McGRAVY HURT

While Shore looked on Roy Getliffe and Pat McGravy, Bruin forwards, crashed during a scrimmage. Getliffe received a severe cut over the left eye which was [illegible] with [illegible] and several teeth knocked out.

There was no [illegible] workout of the Bruins.

"I have a fine looking club," said Manager Ross.

The Bruins [illegible] have a good year if the dispute with Shore [illegible] the fact the team has won from Toronto and Detroit this week in the only games it has played.

It is intended that [illegible] will be able to get along without Shore.

CONFER WITH CALDER

Manager Ross, of course, would like to get his star defense man [illegible] as soon as possible, as Shore is still one of the greats of hockey.

It is expected Shore's next move will be to confer with President Calder.

It is planned to make the game, pitting an Eastern team against a standout eleven of another section, an annual affair which may in time rival the Rose Bowl.

They had been on a golf tour of South America. Runyan won the Argentine open championship.

"Jitterbug" Moore Wins Honors at All-America

By WALTER KILEY

Brilliant new fighting talent, boys with definite ring futures, were unearthed as the Hearst All-America championship trials broke away to an auspicious start in the first of four elimination shows at Boston Arena.

Twenty-four bouts were held, many of them ending in knockouts, virtually all of them blazing displays of clever and courageous punching and boxing.

Of the seven Open Class victors decided all of whom automatically qualified for the New England All-America Finals of December 5th at Boston Garden, none was given a more tremendous crowd reception or proved more worthy than Clayton F. "Jitterbug" Moore, Jr., a newcomer from Pepperell.

Young Moore who earned the "jitterbug" soubriquet by his unorthodox moving about the ring, proved the show sensation as he pulled out the winner of the 118 pound open division.

C. C. C. BOY

The Pepperell youth, making his first start in the public ring, and a product of the Army Base C. C. C. boxing classes, survived a red hot semifinal bout with Medford's strong and hard-hitting Guy Vitaglinano and then came back to score a clean cut win over another Moore, Joe of Springfield, in the final.

"Jitterbug" used to great advantage a fine left jab, hit sharp and

Dartmouth Expects To Beat Cornell ; Capt. Bob MacLeod All-America Hope

By JACK CONWAY

I ASKED THE man who knows all the answers what Dartmouth men really thought of the football game with Cornell on Saturday.

"Dartmouth expects to win," was the quick reply. "It should be a hard game, but when the final whistle blows Captain Bob MacLeod's team should be the victor."

"How about the game in California with Stanford?"

"That's another story. Dartmouth may believe Stanford will win by a slim margin. I don't know why they hold such views, but they do."

"Anything new on Gates?"

"No. He's back in his classes, and trying to forget about football. Nobody will ask him to play football again. That was one of the agreements made when Gates returned to college."

"Of course the football players worked on Gates to play."

"Why wouldn't they? He's a great blocker, and Earl Blaik needs such a type of player in his backfield."

Mr. Boston

"I think Gates was sincere in regard to his religious scruples about playing football. It is better for his peace of mind that he does not play the game.

"Dartmouth men will be keenly disappointed if Captain Bob MacLeod doesn't make every prominent All-America team. They feel he has been New England's outstanding football player this year. He has made tremendous gains carrying the ball without any help from a blocker, while he has acted as a blocker for Bill Hutchinson, Howe and the other backs when they have been carrying the ball.

"At Dartmouth a great deal is thought of Bob Gibson, center. He is a son of Billy Gibson who used to manage Gene Tunney and Benny Leonard. Young Gibson is a splendid type personally, and one of the best football centers I have ever seen in action. Consider him for consideration for your second All-America team."

I believe Dartmouth men are merely trying to be polite when they say they do not believe they will win from Stanford as well as from Cornell. Other than possibly Notre Dame, Southern California, Carnegie Tech and Holy Cross, I do not believe there are any football teams [illegible] Dartmouth has won [illegible]. That is a real football [illegible]

MacLeod Rates at the Top

I AGREE WITH Dartmouth's rating of Captain Bob MacLeod. He is New England's No. 1 football player.

It was after the Harvard-Dartmouth game of a year ago that Dick Harlow told this writer MacLeod was one of the greatest backs in the country.

"Do you consider MacLeod a better football player than Hutchinson who ran wild against Harvard?" I asked.

After this year's Harvard-Dartmouth game Harlow sat in with the newsmen in the locker room in the Dillon Field House.

"You saw a true All-America football player today," said Dick. "He was Captain Bob MacLeod of Dartmouth."

Osmanski, Macdonald, Hall, Wilson

THERE ARE other strong candidates for All-America backfield honors playing on New England college teams. I mention the names of Bill Osmanski of Holy Cross, Tarbert MacDonald and Clifford Wilson of Harvard, and Irving Hall of Brown.

How would you like a backfield composed of MacLeod, Osmanski, Macdonald and Wilson if you were a college football coach?

With any kind of a line you could sit back on the bench and watch your backs go rolling by.

These players will receive additional opportunities to excel before the football curtain drops for the season.

Osmanski and Hall will be playing against each other on Friday afternoon when Brown battles Holy Cross.

MacLeod will experience worthy opposition when he opposes Yale and Stanford.

Yale will test the amazing ability of Macdonald and Wilson.

Harvard Better Than Record Shows

HARVARD HAS a better football team than its record shows. The Crimson has beaten Princeton and Chicago, while it lost to Brown, Cornell, Army and Dartmouth.

But Crimson critics think that Harvard of the Princeton and Chicago games would have won over the four teams that defeated it early in the season.

The schedule makers didn't help Dick Harlow's team any, but despite the early season handicaps the Crimson has kept improving steadily, and should be at its best when it clashes with Yale at New Haven a week from Saturday.

Harvard should have an easy time winning from Virginia at the stadium on Saturday. That game is an advance Christmas gift for the Crimson.

Auburn 'Loafers' on Job Again

AUBURN, Ala., Nov. 8 (INS)—Stancil Whatley and Max Harrison, stellar ends on the Auburn football team, who "quit" the squad last week when Head Coach Jack Meagher "hurt their feelings" by charging they had been "loafing" on the job, were back on the Auburn campus today seeking reinstatement because "we figured we were wrong."

Coach Meagher refused to make a statement regarding the flankmen until he has had a chance to talk with Dr. I. N. Duncan, university president, and both of the players.

"We came back because we figured we were wrong," Whatley told newspapermen. "We want to play on the team, very much so. So we're going to tell how sorry we are sorry about what has happened."

Swarthy Tony Dias, a mighty mite of a southpaw, gained a split decision over Eddie De Angelis of Revere in the 112-pound final, a punching duel with caution thrown to the winds.

Babe Ruth, Tony Lazzeri "Muddy" Ruel and Frankie Frisch are out of the picture . . . Frisch may wind up with the Giants . . . Coach Dick Harlow will soon let Crimson charges to relax somewhat for the next day or two and then will start the drive for Yale . . . After scoring that touchdown against Temple, Ray Wise doesn't care what the Holy Cross varsity players do to him when preparing for the Eagles . . . Cal Hubbard in the roving umpire of America . . . He calls no one spot his home but hangs around a half dozen different places during the off season . . .

Ben Smith is not a Vernon Struck handling a football on spinners but he has improved his taking 100 per cent since the first of the season . . . Freddie Corcoran is off on his winter tour . . . He is down at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., and after attending the annual meeting of the P. G. A. next week in Chicago, will head south . . . Holy Cross is receiving national recognition since Carnegie Tech hung that 20 to 20 defeat on the Pittsburgh Panthers . . . Judge Francis J. W. Ford has joined the Charles River Country Club . . . Ted Tewksbury, Jr., son of the well known golfer, has been brought up from the Lowers to the Harvard varsity squad . . . He's a tackle and somewhat more rotund than Pappy Tewksbury . . . Johnny Magee, the Bowdoin track coach is now a grandfather . . . And he's still trying to figure out what happened down in Lewiston the afternoon that the Polar Bears were brought down by the Bobcats . . . Chick Meehan, former Syracuse, N. Y. U. and Manhattan football coach, is now in the big money . . . He's building gasoline stations in New York and really making a clean-up . . . Mr. and Mrs. "Red" Rolfe will motor from Concord, N. Bob Seaver, Walter's husky son, is playing center on the Roxbury Latin School second team . . . Chick Meehan, who started at Cambridge Latin and Hebron Academy before he went to Dartmouth, must have another great football eleven at New Britain High . . . His Nutmegger team hung a 20 to 0 defeat on Tom Keady's Lowell High boys . . . With the exception of "Doc" Sutherland, few realize just how much of an asset Goldberg is to Pitt.

made hockey history and will live long as a legend.

On top of that, as the politicians say, he is fundamentally sound. Hence physical fitness, plus experienced skill, plus popular idolatry, equals a maximum wage, so he says.

This type lies the usual attitude of old sport heroes as they verge toward their muscular autumn. For the last thing an eldering athlete will concede is the approach of his physical zero, the time when he must bow to nature's inexorable law and take the lead off his legs.

Until now, pursuing youth has existed in Shore's ears only a following footfall—youth which inevitably will fill his place and in beat his cheers. Shore's only consolation is that, in its turn, new youth and more following footfalls will haunt today with the threat of tomorrow so that the hot breath of successive sport generations will always be blowing on the necks of current idols.

Yes, Fidus, the period of production is short—much shorter on the average than yours has been. So get it while, and if, you can.

Drillon Lost To Toronto For Month

(By the Associated Press)

Although the National Hockey League season is only three playing days old and no more action is scheduled until Thursday night, the fast and furious start already has taken its toll of injuries.

The most recent and most important casualty is Gordon Drillon, the Toronto Maple Leafs' right winger who suffered a broken thumb in Saturday night's game against Chicago. Drillon, league-leading scorer last season, probably will be on the bench a month and his loss will be felt keenly although Toronto has plenty of replacement material.

Chicago, off to its fastest start after having won the Stanley Cup last spring with a strong finish, also is a man short. Jack Shill, left winger, also was hurt in the strenuous Saturday game between the 1938 Stanley Cup rivals. X-rays yesterday showed he had suffered dislocated vertebrae and he was ordered to remain in the hospital a month. He probably won't play again until the season is nearly over.

Takes First Staging a mighty drive through the stretch, Oak Tree Stable's Chancery gets up in time to win opening race on Washday card at 'Gansett. High Treason was second, Count Rae, third.

McCoy, Olin Box In Montreal Tonight

Al McCoy's ten-round bout with Bob Olin, booked for Montreal for last night, was postponed until tonight, according to a wire received in this city from Bill Brennan, McCoy's manager.

When McCoy and Olin, who is a former world's light heavyweight champion, fought in Montreal two years ago, Al won the decision.

Along the Grid Front

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark.—Quarterback Billy Patterson of Baylor has dealth Arkansas so much misery in the past two seasons that Coach Fred Thomsen of the Razorbacks has bagged a Billy Patterson of his own for the 1938 freshman squad. Arkansas' Patterson, also a back, hails from Texarkana, Ark., while Baylor's Patterson lives in Hillsboro, Tex. Each weighs about 170 pounds.

UNIVERSITY, Miss.—Ole Miss is going in for relatives of good football players in an effort to produce some fine teams of its own. George and Henry Kinard of the varsity squad are brothers of the former Mississippi great, Frank "Bruiser" Kinard. Two freshmen, John Dodson and Phil Fry, are brothers of varsity players. John Pivernick, 210-pound yearling, is brother of former Notre Dame star who played on the same Irish team with Chuck Juskwhich, backfield coach; Lawrence and Bill Hazel, freshman guards, are sons of Homer Hazel, three-time All-America and former Ole-Miss coach. Merle Mapes has two brothers, Clarance and Ray, ahead of him and Lake Roberson, varsity guard, had an older brother on the team a few years ago.

SOUTHBEND, Ind.—Some observers have complained that Notre Dame has departed from the "Notre Dame" system in using a short punt formation this season but Coach Elmer Layden says it isn't so. The formation goes back some 15 years to when Knute Rockne was making his "system" famous. Rock used short and long punt formations along with the customary "Z" or box formation, Layden says.

PHILADELPHIA—Two of the youngest guards on a major college football team are expected to start for Pennsylvania against Penn State, Saturday. They are Robert Hunt of Glen Ridge, N. J., and Irving Mendelson of Liberty, N. Y., both sophomores. Each is 18 years old and each has played well enough to win the starting job from a more experienced player.

Eagles to 'Go All Out' In B. U. Test

By WALTER KILEY

Of first importance is Friday's game with Boston University and the chance to repay in kind the Terriers' starting 13 to 6 victory a year ago, first in the 40 years of competition.

Second is the annual renewal of the series between the Boston College and Holy Cross freshman clubs, two mighty undefeated outfits meeting in an attraction which rivals in intensity and crowd appeal most varsity clashes of the year. This contest is on Saturday's docket at University Heights.

Finally comes the steady and insistent demand for tickets to the Boston College-Holy Cross varsity game at Fenway Park on Saturday, November 26.

Not since the early days of the Major Cavanaugh regime has interest rivalled that now being shown by the flood of ticket applications.

WOULD ACCEPT INVITATION

While it's still too early to tell for certain, it begins to be apparent that a capacity house of 40,000 will be sitting in when these two Eastern major league clubs vie for honors.

While there's little being said in either quarter about the matter, both the Eagles and Crusaders would be receptive to an invitation to the Sugar Bowl game at New Orleans and it will be the occasion o fa big surprise if the winner of the Fenway classic doesn't get the honor of being solicited.

While the Eagles are certain to be top-heavy favorites over the Terriers on Armistice Day afternoon, Gil Dobie is pointing to the game as a major objective, mindful of the experience of a year ago when a similar pre-game situation prevailed.

Boston College wants to win this game not only to wipe out the stigma of the 1937 issue, but to keep the undefeated slate clean and so to enhance the value of the Holy Cross finale.

JIVVY FRETTING

Other than big Ralph Worth, ranking center, the Eagles will be one hundred per cent ready for the Terriers. Leo Logue, still another Maldenite, will carry the pivot position load and with his fight and hustle, should manage to carry on effectively until his heavier teammate returns to physical form.

Huskie Favored To Beat Upsala

Northeastern University football team will be favored over Upsala in its closing game of the season on Friday at East Orange, N. J. The Huskies were not taxed in their 28-to-12 win over American International College and will be at full strength.

Boston University beat Upsala, 25 to 0, earlier in the season.

Martin, Kaplan Top Goodwin Card

It will be George Martin of the South End, a former Hearst All-America boxing champion, against Mike Kaplan of Dorchester, in a 10-round bout at the opening show of the Goodwin A. C. at the Arena on November 18.

Cum Laude

Four Teams Battle For Catholic Title

Armistice Day, annually a full schedule in the Catholic League, this year finds the top four clubs in the circuit standings battling for position as the elevens make the turn into the last half of the card.

In the standout game Malden Catholic, in a virtual second place tie, takes on league-leading St. Mary's of Waltham, while runner-up St. Charles faces Cathedral on the Waltham gridiron.

St. Mary's, rated the dark horse of the run in the pre-season dope, played its most impressive game of the campaign last Saturday, whipping Cathedral by three touchdowns. This holiday meeting promises to be a much stiffer test.

The little Waltham top place team has a potent attack built around Will Vellanti, Gerry Lane and Jiggs Delorey that should cause Malden no end of heart throbs.

Catholic's defending championship eleven was badly hit by graduation but its sophomores have come along finely since the start of the season, only last week whipping St. James of Haverhill in a non-league game.

Malden barely edged out a victory over St. Clement's in its opener and then dropped a decision to Cathedral but since that loss has surprised the entire loop with its grand showing.

Cathedral, after an opening setback by St. Mary's of Brookline, picked up speed and was expected to give Waltham St. Mary's a real tussle last Saturday but failed dismally. Until this game, the intown school blasted the hopes of Malden Catholic and Mission with victories placing the Jack McCarthy eleven in a most promising position.

St. Charles' comeback has been one of the highlights in the chase for the Cardinal O'Connell trophy. After losing to Mission in its opener, Eddie Minahan's charges took St. Clement's into camp and then continued its streak with a 26-0 victory over St. Mary's of Brookline.

In the other weekly tilt, St. Mary's of Brookline travels to Mission school Saturday afternoon.

'Boy Wonder' 42 Today

Bucky Harris Has No Regrets

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 (AP)—Stanley Raymond Harris—the one-time apple-cheeked boy manager of baseball—was 42 today.

It was 14 years ago that Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Senators, appointed the black-haired former coal miner manager of his team.

Until that time the local diamond refrain ran:

"Washington — first in war, first in peace and last in the American League."

That chant swiftly subsided when the boy manager led an inspired Washington club to its first American League championship.

Harris became the toast of the capital. He went on to beat the Giants in a seven-game World Series and came back the next year to win the pennant again. Washington lost the world's championship to Pittsburgh that year, though, in a seven-game series.

BUCKY HARRIS

Early the next year the fellow who at 13 used to be a breaker boy in a mine at Hugestown, Pa., married Elizabeth Sutherland, a Senator's daughter.

Lifted Senators to Heights

Bucky—for nobody ever called him Stanley or Raymond—signed in 1928 to manage the Detroit Tigers. In 1933 he resigned and went to the Boston Red Sox.

Harris lost out temporarily when Clark Griffith sold his son-in-law, Joe Cronin, to the Red Sox as a player-manager. But Griffith signed his boy manager again, and back to Washington came Bucky. He hasn't won a pennant this time—not yet—but he fooled most of the experts by staying in the first division most of the season.

At 42 Bucky wouldn't change his life if he had to do it over again.

"Besides, I couldn't," he reflected. "It's in the books for me to play baseball. I was born, you know, in Port Jervis, N. Y., 42 years ago on Ball street."

Pat Hanley Says:

Reasons Many for Football Upsets

By L. B. "PAT" HANLEY

Head Coach at Boston University

There's no such thing as a "dream" club in modern football nor is there an eleven on the college front in these days of hectic grid struggles that cannot be beaten.

Pittsburgh, Northwestern and California bear me out in my thought for here are three stand-out clubs who all bowed in defeat last Saturday.

As far as I can discern, there are three reasons for the Pittsburgh loss. The first is the fact that the Panthers reached their peak in the last quarter against Fordham and had that inevitable letdown. When the boys start thinking for themselves and believe that they can coast, there's nothing in the world a coach can do but reach for aspirin.

The second reason is that "Biggie" Goldberg had to quit in the first five minutes.

Jock Sutherland's offense is built on a Warner single wingback attack and the fullback is naturally the keyman. With Goldberg out of there, the fractional loss in timing plus his brilliant running ability meant the difference between victory and defeat.

The third point was the touchdown run by Stebbins on the opening kickoff. There is little doubt in my mind but that the Panthers just relaxed after that soft score and figured that they only had to go through the motions. Then, when the time came to put the pressure on, they just could never get started again.

SIMILAR CASE

Northwestern's case is very similar to that of Pittsburgh in that the Wildcats reached their peak for Minnesota last Saturday and just couldn't get excited about Wisconsin.

The result was that the Gophers played circles around the Purple. In fact, Wisconsin became so inspired that the frontier wall outplayed the Northwestern line, rated as one of the best in the land. Until last Saturday a touchdown had not been scored through the Purple line all season, and that's quite a feat in view of the fact that Minnesota and Ohio State had already been met.

Out on the West Coast, California dropped its first game in 19 starts. There was not a letdown here except the fact that the boys just had that victory complex and figured that they were unbeatable.

TROJANS COMEBACK

Southern California, on the other hand, rated as possible Coast champions this summer, was badly defeated by Alabama in the opening game. Often a setback like this does wonders, for since then the Trojans have really been the class.

Thus, it is easy to see that no matter how great a club may be, the loss of one player, a letdown, a break or any one of a half dozen things will result in that one word every winning coach dreads hearing—"upset."

Too many fans really go overboard on a team and refuse to consider the element of doubt which gives all coaches insomnia during the season.

As a matter of fact, a coach often fears a supposedly soft spot much more than a major game, and from some of the outcomes in the past few years he has every right to that thought.

All-America Honors Certain For Osmanski

WORCESTER, Nov. 8—Bullet Bill Osmanski, brilliant ball totin' captain of the Holy Cross football team, has just two more games left to his college career, and two more chances to cehonors ment his claim to All-America

The big blond from Providence has been on the verge of crashing the Hall of Fame ever since the day when as a sophomore he ran 87 yards for the touchdown which beat Dartmouth at Hanover.

Bill Osmanski

Since then he's been the toast of Purple followers, his sensational runs providing the spark which has given the Crusaders a record of only one defeat in two seasons.

Continuance of Osmanski's showing as exemplified against Colgate in the game with Brown next Friday and against Boston College in the campaign finale, will merit him just All-America deserts.

Osmanski, one of the most likable players in Purple history, a confident, hard and rugged player, ran roughshod over the Red Raiders, turning in his most startling and sensational performance of the year.

For instance Temple was so concerned with stopping his ground thrusts last Saturday, that they completely passed up a defense against Ronnie Cahill's superb and accurate passes.

AMESBURY WINS

AMESBURY, Nov. 8—The Amesbury high school freshmen closed their season by defeating the Central school eleven of Methuen, 12 to 7, in a return game.

Sid Luckman Back At Backfield Post

NEW YORK, Nov. 8 (AP)—The Columbia squad was at full strength for the first time since the Penn game as it began preparations for Saturday's clash with Navy. Sid Luckman returned to his left halfback post and Captain Jack Wright was at tackle during a long signal drill.
